PLANE FALLS IN CURRENT OF ICE

Pilot and Miners Flying With Cargo of Gold Dust Are Forced Down in Stream of Floating Ice Blocks

SMALL BOAT PUSHES OFF; DESPERATE RESCUE MADE

While Little Craft Battles With Whirling Floes Population of Village Watches Struggle From Bank

McGRATH, Alaska, Nov. 10.—Joe Croson, pilot, and Charlie Balami and Carl Carlson, miners, were nearly frozen to death today when an airplane in which they were flying fell into the Kuskokwim River here with a cargo of gold dust estimated at 300 pounds and valued at approximately $50,000.

The temperature was below zero and the river was running black full of ice. The men were saved after waiting more than an hour on the wings of the plane, which lay in a perilous position while rescuers attempted to launch a boat over the ice which extended out from the river bank. The men had scrambled onto the wings when the plane turned over in the water.

After reaching the stranded machine and taking off the flyers the small boat began a desperate fight to reach shore again as the whirling ice battered the little vessel and destruction was imminent. The population of McGrath stood on the banks of the river shouting encouragement. When a break appeared in the ice the craft reached the frozen shore and the men were rushed to a huge fire which had been started near the river. Efforts are being made to get the body of the plane which contained the gold, ashore.

MR. VINCENT MASSEY IS NOW APPOINTED

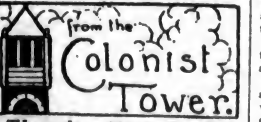

CANADIAN MINISTER TO WASHINGTON CREATED BY ORDER-IN-COUNCIL

Announcement Made by Acting Prime Minister—Mr. Massey's Varied Past Activities

OTTAWA, Nov. 10.—Hon. Vincent Massey was appointed Canadian Minister to Washington today by order-in-council passed by the cabinet this afternoon. The announcement was made by Hon. J. A. Robb, Acting Prime Minister, to a group of newspapermen early this evening. Mr. Massey is in England at present with the Premier, attending the Imperial Conference in an unofficial capacity.

Mr. Massey goes to Washington at the age of thirty-nine; on February 29 he will be forty. He was educated in Toronto at the Model School, St. Andrew's College and the University of Toronto, where he was graduated in arts in 1910. Mr. Massey studied at Oxford at Balliol College, and holds Oxford degrees of B.A. and M.A. From 1913 to 1915 he was a lecturer in modern history at the University of Toronto, and Dean of Residence of Victoria College. The building of Hart House, the Collegiate Gothic building which centralized all extra-mural activities of the University of Toronto, was constructed under Mr. Massey's direction. The Minister to Washington has taken a particular interest in the Little Theatre movement, and also has taken an active part in the productions of the Hart House Theatre.

Between November, 1916, and January, 1918, Mr. Massey was in charge of musketry training in Military District No. 2, comprising Toronto and Central Ontario, and held the rank of Colonel on Page 2

BUILDING SHOWS
LARGE INCREASE*INSPECTOR BARF PREDICTS ACTIVE AUTUMN CONSTRUCTION PROGRAMMEContracts Awarded Last Month Throughout Canada Totaled $43,361,600

Commenting on the big increase in construction work in Victoria for the first ten months of this year, and the increase in construction for the first ten days in November, City Building Inspector Barf said yesterday that an active Autumn construction programme was assured by the October and November contracts.

Contracts awarded throughout Canada amounted to $43,361,600, Inspector Barf stated to The Colonist, in reviewing his reports. This, he said, exceeded all previous October records and was particularly encouraging, coming at it did, after two months of active building, not only in Victoria, but also throughout the Dominion.

For the first ten months of this year construction in Canada amounted to nearly $330,000,000, an increase of thirty-six per cent over last year, and forty-five per cent over the same period of 1924. British Columbia alone contributed toward the October quota for the entire Dominion $1,214,200.

More encouraging still is the fact that prices of building material are steadily declining towards the low level set in 1913, the pre-war standard. This should help considerably in increasing the number of contracts to be taken out, Inspector Barf stated. There was every possibility that the value of contracts taken out in November would exceed those taken out during the same month last year. An increase has already been shown for the first ten days, while the increase of $170,000 for the first ten months of this year is expected to reach the $200,000 mark by the end of December.

COUNCILLOR CROUCH
FOURTH CONTESTANT*RUNS FOR REVEAL ON POLICY OPPOSED TO IMPROVEMENT TAXATION

Had Past Experience in Civic Work in Brandon—Two Prospective Candidates to Be Heard From

COUNCILLOR WILLIAM CROUCH

Councillor William Crouch announced yesterday that he would be a candidate for the reevehip of Saanich. He is the fourth contestant to seek this office, with two prospective candidates to be heard from.

In announcing his candidature Councillor Crouch stated that he was running on a policy of "no tax on improvements." This, he said, was of first importance.

He had been an energetic member of this year's Saanich council, being prominent for his absolute fearlessness and straightforward speaking on any matter brought before the council.

In giving his statement to The Colonist Councillor Crouch said that "if elected, there will be no tax on improvements in any shape or form as far as I am concerned," declaring that in his opinion there was no need of it at the present time.

"Saanich needs at this time a man for reeve who can give the whole of his time to the duties without having other conflicting business interests to take up most of his time and attention. I am in a splendid condition financially and have made good, steady progress during the last four years. If elected I will not make any drastic changes in any shape except to bring about vigorous business policy of getting reverted lands off our hands."

The three chief points in his platform will be: "No taxes on improvements," "sell reverted lands and get them back to a tax-paying basis," and "give the whole of my time and attention to the Saanich municipality."

Councillor Crouch is well known in Victoria, being president of the Metropolitan Men's Brotherhood. Before retiring from his manufacturing business he was an alderman and chairman of the police commission in Brandon. For fifteen years he was president and director of the Y.M.C.A. and Social Service, of that city. He was also active on the Brandon Board of Trade and in the Manufacturers' Association.

"I think that the experience I have gained should be of great help if I am elected reeve of Saanich," Councillor Crouch concluded.

With Councillor Crouch as the fourth to announce his candidature for reevehip the municipality is divided into two camps, two representatives from the outer wards and two from the inner wards. The two prospective candidates to be heard from definitely are Councillor Graham, from an inner ward, and ex-Reeve Watson, of Gordon Head. There will be a total of six candidates if the latter two should decide to run. At the present time, three of the four candidates are councillors, so that some changes can be looked for on next year's council. The names of the candidates in the field at the present time are: Trustees P. V. Hobbs, chairman of the Saanich School Board; Councillor H. O. Kirkham, both from outer wards; and Councillor William Stubbs and Councillor William Crouch, from inner wards. The reevehip contest has revealed itself into a contest with the question of whether improvement taxation should be enforced as an issue.

Denies Suggestion

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Premier Stanley Bruce, of Australia, who is attending the Imperial Conference here, denied today having suggested a meeting between the United States Senate Foreign Relations Committee and a Council of British Premiers. The denial followed receipt of Washington dispatches saying President Coolidge did not look on the suggestion with particular favor. Mr. Bruce declared he had never said anything capable of the interpretation given in Washington dispatches.

SORSUM CORDA

All retrospect to be profitable must have regard to moral and spiritual rather than to temporal and material issues. It is the spirit in which the great crises of life are met that is the touchstone of our better selves. That is a thought for Armistice Day. There is a beneficent remembrance wherein conscience has no scope for reproach in looking back over the chapters of life written during the year 1914-1918. Where conscience can tell of duty well done in some one corner of earth or other, on the battlefield or in the home, the individual is so much the better. In this respect there are millions who can look back on the war years without reproach. There are thousands upon thousands of homes which, even though they are the poorer in numbers because of the sacrifice which the war entailed, are the richer in knowledge of duty well and nobly done.

This day of anniversary of the Armistice has been peculiarly set aside for a tribute to the dead. It is now possible to look in retrospect "beyond the tragedy of a world at strife," and to measure and appraise the sacrifices of that period at something like their true value. There are those who believe that the struggle was in vain, that the sacrifice might have been spared; who see imposture in both triumph and defeat, but they are not those who take the longer vision—"to the long parting and the age to come." The war disclosed some of the finest characteristics of human nature, which, in this present age and generation, might never have been disclosed to the same degree if the challenge of Prussianism had not been heard over the Seven Seas. That is why thoughts are high on Armistice Day, and high even in homes where the sorrow of loss comes back as poignant as ever over the bridge of years. The drop of bitterness is one of a bitterness which carries with it, too, a knowledge of some duty done, of high resolve of the consummation of sacramentum supremum. That is the thought which elevates so many hearts today and lifts them up to a high spiritual plane; and that, too, is why all unite on this anniversary to do honor to the memory of—"Those who with fame eternal their own dear land endowed; Took on them as a mantle the shade of death's dark cloud; Yet dying thus they died not; on whom is glory shed. By virtue which exalts them above all other dead."

CITY MANAGER ISSUE

The City Council will be well advised if it puts a straight question before the form of a referendum before the citizens on the City Manager issue. The question, as drafted by Alderman Marchant, appears to cover the situation because most controversy has arisen over the powers that might be conferred on a City Manager, and especially those powers which involve the appointment, promotion and dismissal of civic officials and employees. There is enough embraced in the question as now framed to enable the citizens to give a direct verdict and if there is any attempt to introduce new issues the people may well give an enigmatic answer and leave the matter still in abeyance. The simpler the question in a referendum the better. What the City Council desires to be instructed upon is whether or not the citizens want a City Manager at all.

Seattle has just refused to try the experiment of a City Manager by a very substantial majority. In Hamilton, Ontario, a decision has been reached not to submit the issue to the people as there is no evidence of any solid desire for a change in the form of municipal administration. It is perhaps fitting that the first test of public opinion on the subject in British Columbia should be made in the capital of the province, and indeed, it is only here that there has been any definite propaganda in favor of a City Manager. That propaganda has been exceptionally weak and the supporters of the plan seem at a loss for arguments that will apply to local conditions. On the other hand there is a volume of evidence to show that the city could hope to gain nothing while it undoubtedly would pile up new expenses by the experiment. The civic outlook here is not such as to call for any drastic change at this time. During the last two years there have been slight taxation reductions. There is promise of a substantial reduction in 1927 which may reach three or four mills. This will be the result of careful financing extending over a period of years and not due specifically to any administration of any particular year. It is a result, indeed, for which the citizens have every reason to congratulate themselves since it was their advocacy which led to the institution of a policy of caution. On that account there is no need whatever for the introduction of any foreign experiment in municipal affairs and we hope the citizens will say so emphatically when they vote on the forthcoming referendum.

BOLSHEVIST INFLUENCES

The growing power of the Cantonese in China is being achieved rather more by propaganda than by the force of arms. The Cantonese effort is being aided largely by Bolshevik money and is a movement in the declared Bolshevik aim of destroying foreign influence in China. The Cantonese are pledged to bring about the abrogation of the rights and privileges conferred on foreigners by treaty. Whatever may be the attitude of Foreign Powers and the world in general to the present chaos in China the development of the Cantonese movement can hardly be viewed otherwise than with alarm because it is being buttressed up by Russian influence.

The Cantonese are fighting mainly by propaganda. In a military sense they are no match for the Northern Armies but they have been skillfully creating a feeling that because of rivalries and jealousies there is no Northern commander who can depend upon his subordinates. There is some truth in this. Chang Tso-lin is in a precarious position because of financial stress brought about by his military adventures. Wu Peifu has suffered severe defections and his army is fading away, while Sun Chuan-fang has not the undivided confidence of his supporters. The outlook is opening up a new phase in China's chaotic progress and it is beginning to appear questionable if the Northern leaders will be able to maintain a solid front against their Cantonese opponents.

The success of the Cantonese would create problems as great as those which now exist and might conceivably bring China into direct conflict with one or more of the Great Powers. There are astute observers even now who predict that the stage is being cleared for a struggle in the Pacific which will precede the advent of stable government in China. Russia's efforts to Bolshevize Europe have failed. She has turned her attention to the Orient and is gaining something in the nature of a superficial, if ephemeral, success in China. A China under Soviet domination would be a menace to the interests of both Europe and the United States in the Pacific. The Chinese complications have a world-wide interest and even if the choice of the contending factions there today is one between two evils, that of military domination and Bolshevism, there is the prospect in the event of the latter influence triumphing of perennial strife into which Europe and America can hardly fail to be drawn eventually. The Pacific Ocean may become a battleground sooner than many people anticipate.

China has cancelled the Belgian-Chinese Treaty of 1865 which lapsed on October 27. All negotiations to reach a modus vivendi seem to have failed because Belgium would not accept the Chinese proposals. One proposal was that Belgium should have the most-favored nation treatment in commercial matters but he refused her right to maintain consular tribunals. So long as the other Powers have the benefit of consular jurisdiction Belgium wishes the same privilege since she has great interests in China such as railways, tramways, glassworks and collieries. The cancellation of the Treaty in the face of the attitude of Belgium that she alone had the right to denounce it has raised a serious question, though it is doubtful if Belgium will appeal to the Hague Court unless China takes action contrary to Belgian interests following the lapse of the Treaty.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

It was Thomas Carlyle, born near Ecclefechan (pronounce that name correctly if you can), and ultimately known as the Sage of Chelsea, who wrote that there were about thirty-five millions of people in Great Britain—mostly fools. The time may come when somebody, probably a successor of the sage Arthur Brisbane, will write that there are one hundred and fifty millions of people in the United States—most of them millionaires. There was a time when there were very few millionaires in the United States, two or three of them in New York City. Commodore Vanderbilt was one of them. Now there is one billionaire in the United States, and he is said to be John D. Rockefeller. The fact that there is now one billionaire in the United States has been established, for one billionaire pays an income tax to the Federal Government on that vast sum of money.

There are said to be two other men in the great and wealthy republic who might be classified as billionaires if they were sufficiently ambitious to compute their accumulations in terms of dollars. Those two men are Henry Ford and Andrew Mellon. Mr. Ford's wealth is locked up in factories, machinery and motor cars. Mr. Mellon is a banker by profession and a politician by inclination. His investments are nearly all represented by stocks and bonds. The wealth of Mr. Ford and of Mr. Mellon is accumulating so fast that they will soon be paying income taxes on billions of dollars.

Rockefeller, Mellon and Ford are doubtless the richest men in the world. The New World has out-distanced the Old World in the race for material supremacy. The World War impoverished Europe and enriched America. It may be that the financial dominance of the New over the Old was inevitable, but there is no doubt that the partial suspension of business which followed the outbreak of hostilities hastened the event.

There are about nine millions of people in Canada, as yet comparatively few of them millionaires and certainly none of them billionaires. But the wealth of Canada is increasing faster than the population, and it may be that there are children living in this country who will live to read the interesting statement that there is a Canadian paying income tax on a billion dollars. There is quite as much natural wealth in Canada as there is in the United States, and somebody just as lucky as John D. Rockefeller and somebody just as energetic, ingenious and enterprising as Henry Ford or Andrew Mellon, is sure to grasp occasion by the hand and take advantage of the natural wealth of Canada.

We shall therefore have our billionaires in Canada as the Americans have their billionaires in the United States, and when the day of Canadian billionaires dawns we trust they will make as good use of their wealth as Mr. Rockefeller has made of his original millions and is now making of his accumulated billions.

We believe it was the late Andrew Carnegie, who was not a billionaire but was many times a millionaire, who once publicly declared that he hoped to live long enough to die a poor man. He didn't. He gave millions of dollars away in endowments of various kinds, but he lived to die a very rich man. His dollars accumulated faster than he could scatter them abroad. Mr. Carnegie's case illustrated one of the peculiar qualities of accumulated wealth. After one gathers together millions of dollars, it is impossible, apparently, for the original collector to dispossess himself of them. His heirs may do that, and they usually do it, but the art of spending extravagantly and foolishly is beyond the capacity of one who has passed a lifetime in accumulating.

Our friends of the Socialist political persuasion declare that after they have established themselves in power they will make short work of the billionaires and the millionaires and their alleged ill-gotten gains. We can imagine the revels and the orgies, the feasting and the carousing, the fire would be lit if the followers of Stalin were to gain access to the United States and establish themselves in the seat of power there, but it is a somewhat curious thing that the masses of the people of the United States do not appear to be envious of their few neighbors who are the possessors of boundless wealth.

The present, and doubtless very temporary, Soviet chief has declared that the United States is a menace to world civilization, or something of the kind. Great Britain was the menace; now the United States is the menace. Socialism has established what may be called a foothold in Great Britain, but the Socialism of Great Britain has rejected Sovietism. Socialism has not obtained even a foothold in the United States. Sovietism dare not raise its head there. The people of Great Britain, however radical the political views of some of those people, are firm supporters of the principle of law and order. The people of the United States are firm believers in the theory of law and order, although they appear to be somewhat lax in practical application of the theory. Consequently it would appear that Great Britain and the United States, instead of being menaces to civilization, are the bulwarks of civilization.

Body of Barnardo Boy Found North of Regina

REGINA, Nov. 10.—Five months' search for Edward (Ted) Cantlin, thirty-one, a Barnardo home boy, who had been in Saskatchewan for twelve years ended today when his body was found hidden in the bush near Melan, north of Regina. Officers of the provincial police are investigating.

HIS MASTER'S VOICE

About a month ago, Dr. Thomas Mercer lost his valuable retriever dog, "Irish," which had evidently been stolen. Early a Japanese found the dog in Vancouver in a very emaciated condition. He took it to the police station, and when "Irish" heard his master's voice on the phone, all doubt as to the ownership of the dog was removed.

"My Master's Voice" was forced to room, and seek in vain my long-lost home. Ah! how I missed those friends so dear, And how I longed once more to hear—

Yes, footstep, weary, broken-hearted, 'Twas quite a month since we were parted;

Sometimes I thought that you were near, Yet I could never really hear—

My Master's Voice.

No one, it seemed, in that great city Had time a poor lost dog to pity. Until I heard—I knew not what— A kindly word, 'tho' 'twas not—

My Master's Voice.

It proved a friend who did prevail, And coaxed me was my drooping tail, Who took me to a man in blue, Whose words, 'tho' kind, were different to—

My Master's Voice.

And then a miracle took place, For 'tho' I could not see his face, 'Tho' miles away across the sea, Those words I heard—it seemed to be—

My Master's Voice.

"Old boy, I'll fetch you home," he said; "Once more I'll pat your dear old head."

And then I barked with joy, because That voice I heard, I knew it was—

My Master's Voice.

—Almsfeld.

DAY OF REMEMBRANCE

(Pro aris et focis)

Life's bitterest hour doth bring its balm

When wedded, Time, to thee; Successive seasons all becalm.

Funeral shadows flee; But memory lingers long in thrall To thine, O death, desire.

And on her altar rears withal The sacrificial fire.

Again we gather round the shrine Of these, our Glorious Dead; Fair flowers and fragrant here en-twine.

And reverently tread, The crimson cloud that covered them On far-off Flanders' fields.

How now serene the sparkling gem Each smiling poppy yields!

Back o'er the lengthening years we feel That dear loved presence near!

Out from the gloom now softly peal Melodious strains and clear.

In metric chant of hymns we raise Our inmost thoughts on high, And sanctify with holy lays The heart's unshriven sigh.

The golden morning bids us dwell Not in the tortured past, While seeming some great organ-swell

Doth voice the heavens vast. Lo! he who paid war's wanton wage In mortal forfeiture, With martyrs of a bygone age, Immortal, shall endure!

—Mary H. Rathom.

H. DUCE

Emblem of all that is unselfish, kind, Not in oneself, but in one thought divine;

A country's love, one hope within thy mind:

"Restore Imperial Rome in Caesar's line."

To scatter plenty o'er a famished land,

To stem rebellion's devastating flood,

To give thy labor with unstinted hand,

And crush oppression like a vice of blood.

Could Zealan's ruby and the diamond eye

Of Juggernaut, the jewels of Parvati throne,

With those of gem-star'd Sallman the wise,

And Gershard's crown, be added stone on stone.

Could rich Golconda's wealth, nay, that of Ind

Be harvested with Eldorado's store, It could not bring one solace to thy mind.

Nor add one joy, one consolation more.

—J. Herbert Gray.

Coal and Wood.—The contract for supplying coal and wood to Government House and Buildings for the ensuing nine months has been awarded to Capt. W. R. Clarke at $2.50 per English ton for coal and $4.50 and $4.80 (average) per cord for wood. These were four tenders and the contract was awarded in the usual manner to the lowest responsible bidder.

Illness.—Dispatches received here yesterday state that Judge Jacobs (Republican) has undoubtedly been elected delegate to Congress for Washington Territory over Mr. Judson (Democrat).

Improvement.—Mrs. Bate, wife of Mayor Bate of Nanaimo, is rapidly recovering from her severe illness and is expected to be up in a few days.

COMEDY AND THRILLS IN GIBSON'S LATEST

"The Man in the Saddle," Showing at Columbia Today, Is Redoubtable Hood's Best Yet

"The Man in the Saddle," the latest Universal-Jewel production, starring Hoot Gibson, will be the feature attraction here at the Columbia Theatre today and the many fans of that popular Western star have a decided treat in store for them.

The mixture of comedy and thrills which has made Gibson's pictures internationally popular are promised in large and pleasing doses in this production.

The picture is based on an original photoplay written by Charles A. Logue, of the scenario staff of Universal Pictures Corporation, and was directed by Clifford S. Smith.

The Rhyming Optimist

By Allie Michaelis

Across the earth man joys to roam as far as four winds blow, yet finds no spot as dear as home, for love has made it so. Love lights bright candles in the eyes that gleam with welcome there, love rings through childhood's shrill, sweet cries that still the voice of care. The loveliest island he may find, by kind waves caressed, still lacks the bonds that home can bind about the human breast. Far, far the restless feet may rove from ways that childhood knew, but at the last the heart will prove to home's old ties still true. No spot beneath the sky's blue dome, though it be famed and fair, can ever be as dear as home, for love has looking there.

MR. G. G. McGEER, K.C., WILL ATTEND SITTING OF RAILWAY BOARD

It is announced that the case of R.C. for adjustments of the freight rates will again come before the Railway Commissioners sitting at Ottawa on November 30. Mr. G. G. McGeer, K.C., the special counsel for the Provincial Government, will go East and attend the sitting in his capacity as counsel representing the Government of British Columbia.

At this hearing the result of the evidence taken at the sittings of the members of the Board throughout the Province last summer, when they heard evidence acting in the capacity under which they were instructed to proceed under the order of the Dominion Government, which called for an investigation as to the equalization of rates.

SCHOOL EXPENSES LOWER THIS YEAR

EXPENDITURES SO FAR $28,418
BELOW THOSE OF CORRESPONDING 1925 PERIOD

High School Cafeteria Self-Supporting—Heroic Act of School Boys to Be Rewarded

Victoria School Board expenditures so far this year amount to $28,418.46, a decrease of $28,418.46 as compared with the corresponding period of last year. It was shown in the finance committee's report submitted to the board at last night's meeting. The estimated expenditures for the year total $495,308, so that there remains $266,889.54 for the board to carry on with until the end of the year. Capital expenditure, which was chiefly for the Oaklands School annex, amounts to $11,290.

The school trustees, in adopting this report, authorized the payment of accounts amounting to $6,247. Among these accounts were those incurred by the High School cafeteria. They amounted to $19,238, of which $17,333 was considered capital expenditure. In commenting upon this, Trustee Walker said that the cafeteria was self-supporting. The receipts having amounted to $459, which left a profit after the capital expenditure had been deducted from the accounts, of $55.51. Total receipts from October 14 to November 10 came to $4,816.

Attention of the School Board was drawn to a heroic act of two schoolboys last summer when they saved the life of another boy. Mr. Charles Clarke, of 422 Craigflower Road, was the informant. He said that a young lad, Omar Gaze, fifteen years of age, fell into the Gorge, and was unable to swim. Harold Baker, twelve years of age, dived in after him, but had difficulty, as the drowning boy was holding his rescuer's head under water. Walter Moore then jumped in and brought the two safely to shore.

The School Board will investigate this matter, and if it is found that the life of another boy was saved, the principal of the latter will be asked to draw attention of the school to the incident. Steps may be taken to secure a medal for the boys from the Royal Humane Society.

ANNUAL POPPY BALL WILL PROVE SUCCESS

Large Crowd Is Expected Tonight at Armistice Hall at Empress Hotel

The arrangements for the Poppy Ball at the Empress Hotel this evening have now been completed. The six-service men have for this occasion given special attention to the decoration of the ballroom, being now resplendent with flags and bunting, with the poppy emblem completing the effect.

The Naval Veterans, under the chairmanship of Comrade Stedley, have worked hard to complete the effect.

The refreshment committee, under Comrade Stone, of the Britannia branch, is reported to have been working under cover, so there may be a surprise in this connection.

The tickets, which are limited this year, are now selling rapidly, and all intending guests should purchase tickets as early as possible in order to avoid disappointment.

The Lieutenant-Governor and his party will arrive at 9:30 o'clock, and are to be played into the ballroom by the pipers of the 14th Battalion, whereupon they will be received with musical honors by the band.

It appears that the function this year will surpass those of previous years, there being considerable interest displayed from many new quarters.

Dancing will continue from 9 till 2 o'clock.

Girl Guide Notes

At the meeting of the local association of Girl Guides held on Tuesday afternoon in the I.O.O.F. rooms, Hastings Building, a competition was announced for the best design for a Guide enrolment card. The card must be nine inches by six inches in dimensions and the design must include the Guide badge and the flag, further decorations to be left to the fancy of the artist. A prize of $3 has been kindly offered by Miss Wiegley for the winning design. The competition is open to all members of the Guide organization. All designs must be handed in to the provincial secretary of Girl Guides, Arcade Building, before November 30.

Keen interest was shown by all Guides present in the discussion as to the possibility of acquiring a piano of their own for headquarters. Such an instrument is very necessary for accompaniment in the training for folk dancing and singing as well as for entertainments, but prospects of obtaining one are not financially very promising at present. Mrs. Burdick, district commissioner, and Mrs. Stewart-Williams will look into ways and means, and the subject will come up for further discussion.

Warrants were issued to Miss Henslowe and to Miss Goward, and lieutenants' warrants were applied for on behalf of Miss Mary Campbell and Miss Doris Taylor.

The first of a series of lectures on first aid was given by Dr. Bailey on Tuesday evening at the Guides' training class held in the Board of Trade Building. A well attended gathering of Guides was present, including several lady commanders, and all were deeply interested. The lectures will be held each Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock.

Ref to the lecture a practice of folk dancing was held, the training being undertaken by Miss Stewart-Williams.

Solarium Sewing Seen by Visitors

An interesting display of the work done by various women's organizations in the city for the Queen Alexandra Solarium for Crippled Children, was held on Tuesday afternoon at the solarium headquarters, Government Street. During the afternoon many visitors called to inspect the work, there being a large supply of sewing and many knitted articles. A handiwork section, artistically decorated with quantities of gaily-colored pictures, such as would delight the heart of an invalid child, was received from Mrs. McCormack and her children. Several members of the Solarium W.A. were present, giving helpful suggestions for work, and explaining the use of many of the hospital garments and the aprons, which are in themselves the result of specially-trained and expert work. A number of donations were received with thanks, and the keenest interest was shown by all present.

St. Matthias Bazaar to Found Parish Hall Fund

Under the auspices of the ladies of St. Matthias Church, a bazaar will be held at the Memorial Hall tomorrow afternoon. The affair, in preparation for which much energy has been expended during the past two months, will be formally opened at 2:30 o'clock by Mrs. Schofield, and in addition to the numerous attractions in the way of articles for sale there will be a musical programme by Major Watts' orchestra. There will be a splendid assortment of dressed dolls at reasonable prices, aprons, delicious candy, a table of fancywork, a stall of home cooking, an orange tree for the children, and a picture gallery of rare art works. Tea will be served.

The proceeds of this undertaking are to be used as a nucleus for a fund to build a parish hall, the need of such a building being urgent with the growing activities of the church. At the present time there is no room in the church for the Sunday school classes, which are steadily growing, and there is no place suitable for the holding of parish committee meetings. The women of the parish, recognizing this need, have thrown themselves wholeheartedly into the organization of this bazaar and confidently appeal to the public also to lend its support.

Countess Karolyi Has Arrived in Montreal

MONTREAL, Nov. 10.—Countess Karolyi, wife of Hungary's wartime Prime Minister, arrived from overseas yesterday and registered at a local hotel as plain "Mrs. Karolyi." She told press representatives that she was out here purely on a personal visit.

Beyond stating that she intended to visit Western Canada and look over some farms in Saskatchewan, the Countess revealed nothing of her future plans.

Harvester's Trip Ends in Romance

A harvester's excursion ended in a happy romance when Miss Florence Marie Murray, a British Canadian girl, became the bride of William Chrypis, a Ukrainian, both of Toronto, in Calgary, Alberta.

DOMINION ACADEMY PUPILS IN RECITAL

Youthful Artists Entertain Big Audience of Friends With Excellent Programme—Talent Shown

A large audience, composed of parents and friends, listened with the keenest interest to the work of the students of the Dominion Academy of Music in their recital this week. Many young artists made their first appearance, and without exception received a most enthusiastic greeting, especially little Maryan Peterson, aged six, whose interpretation of the piano duet with Doreen Shute gave undoubted promise for the future. She was encored and played a second duet with Madame Webb.

Among the others who made their debut, mention must be made of Gilbert Margison and Dorothy Gibbs, violinists, both of whom received encors, also Fannie Wright, Mary Hevan-Fritchard and Lovina Jensen, who gave piano solos.

The following students, the Misses Flora Allan, Audrey Wood, Norma Halliday and Marjorie Hulke, who have all passed the advanced grade examinations, gained the usual long applause for their very fine solos, all giving encors. Another clever young pianist, Master Roy Gibbs, was also recalled. Other successful solos were rendered by Margaret Watson, Betty Shute, Doreen Shute, Zelma Purdy.

Madame Webb extended an invitation to all students and their friends to be present on that night. A musical programme will be given by intermediate, advanced and Baccalaureate students.

Car Backs Over Ferry Colonel McRae Drowns

SYDNEY, N.S., Nov. 10.—Colonel John Duncan McRae, of Nyanza, lost his life last night at Ross Ferry, when his car backed over the end of the motor ferry, carrying him to the bottom of the lake. Colonel McRae, well-known merchant of Nyanza, was in charge of the 24th Battalion during the war.

Women's Institutes

South Saanich

The South Saanich Women's Institute held their regular fortnightly card party in Temperance Hall on Saturday evening with a good attendance.

Mrs. R. E. Nimmo, Miss Hilda Ryan, Mr. Fred Mitchell and Mr. Ralph Mitchell were the first prize winners, while the consolation prizes were awarded to Mrs. Frank Young, Miss Doris Mitchell, Mr. H. Lawrie and Miss M. McKenzie.

Delicious refreshments were served after the game by the committee in charge of the affair. Mrs. Henderson Lawrie, Mrs. R. E. Nimmo, Miss Evelyn Nimmo and Miss M. McKenzie. The next game will be on Saturday evening, November 20.

The South Saanich Women's Institute will meet in the rooms at Temperance Hall on Thursday afternoon, November 11, for the purpose of making the wool comforter which will be a lucky prize at the country store and dance to be held in Temperance Hall on December 10.

Metochosin

Any members of the Metochosin Women's Institute who are able to assist with the refreshments at the Potato Show in the Armories are asked to help on Wednesday afternoon, November 24. Mrs. McLachlan will arrange for those who have no cars, to be taken home. She will also be glad to receive pumpkins, or pumpkin pies in addition to other home-cooked articles.

Equinoctial

The monthly meeting of the Island Women's Institute, held on Tuesday evening in the Parish Hall, St. Paul's Garrison Church, was well attended.

The members decided to give a masquerade ball for children at the Rex Theatre on December 10 at 7 p.m., the receipts from which will be given to the Solarium.

Responding to a request from Mrs. McLachlan, superintendent of Women's Institutes, for assistance at the luncheon and afternoon tea to be held in connection with the Poirot, Huib and Reed Fair to be held at the Armories, several members offered their services for the afternoon of November 26.

Mrs. Appleby reported that the silver tea and whisky drive held by the Child Hygiene Council, had been very successful.

Mrs. Cave, who, with the assistance of Mrs. Booth and Mrs. Appleby, had collected on Armistice Day, reported that they had met with good success.

Mrs. Booth announced that a masquerade will be held in the Rex Theatre on November 25 in aid of the Memorial fund.

Mrs. Parkes announced that the institute card party will take place on November 11 at 8 o'clock in the Parish Hall.

A most interesting report of the Islands Institutes' conference, was heard from Mrs. Parkes, the institute delegate, who was accorded a hearty vote of thanks by the members.

Mrs. Gilder was unable to attend and address the Institute as arranged.

The hostesses of the social hour were Mesdames Nicol, McIluff, Williamson and Stockley.

The annual meeting and election of officers will take place in December.

Hong Kong Completes Reclamation Works

HONG KONG, Nov. 10.—The Macao Industrial exposition opened yesterday with a large attendance. Acting Governor Hugo de Lacerda, of the Portuguese settlement, made the opening address. The exposition is to celebrate the completion of extensive reclamation works which increase the present area of the colony and also gave better facilities for ocean-going vessels.

McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets Fine for Thin Underdeveloped Kids

Children Love Them Because They Are Sugar Coated and as Easy to Take as Candy

It's your duty, Mother, to see that the frail, peaked, sickly youngster grows up to be strong in body, keen in mind and robust in health. Extracted from the livers of the lowly codfish are the health, weight and strength producing vitamins that are found in McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets, which are sold by pharmacists all over North and South America.

Doctors know about them and so does Vancouver Drug Co., MacFarlane Drug Co., Owl Drug Co., and if your children need building up ask for these tablets today if you want to give your loved ones a good appetite and put pounds of good healthy flesh on their bones. But be sure and get McCoy's.

They are not expensive—60 tablets—40 cents and if you are not pleased with the improvement after 30 days—your money back.

A very sickly child, age 9, gained 12 pounds in seven months and is strong and healthy.
One skinny woman gained 9 pounds in 24 days.

Cedar Hill Tennis Club

A most delightful dance was held last evening under the auspices of the Cedar Hill Tennis Club at the Lake Hill Community Centre. There were about 100 guests, who enjoyed dancing to the music played by the Serenaders' orchestra, with Ozard at the piano. Supper was served at tables prettily decorated with Autumn flowers. Last night's dance was the first of a series to be held every two weeks. The next dance will take place on about November 24. Credit is due to the following committee for success of the dance: Miss Harris, Miss Clarke, Mr. Turner, Mr. Clarke and Mr. Green.

Your Most Becoming Colors

By DOROTHY STOTE

Auburn Hair and Vivid Complexion

For Evening Wear

Perhaps, like myself, you have the idea that since an artist must understand the principles of color harmony in naturally follows that an artist's wife always be arrayed in the most becoming shades. What was my disillusionment, then, to encounter at an evening affair the wife of an artist who works exclusively in color clad in a red evening gown! For I had previously observed and privately admired her lovely coppery hair, and now knew the lovely auburn tints and her hair took on a drab, uninteresting brown, that went poorly with her complexion.

At any rate, I had the consolation of seeing a very concrete example of the harm that red, even under artificial light, can do to auburn hair; so the experience was not without its value.

For the woman whose hair is auburn and complexion vivid, red is doubly harmful. It ruins her hair and does unpleasant things to her cheeks. But then why resort to red when there are other delightful shades that are the faithful friends of this type? Just see the colors given her for her evening gown:

Good
Medium blue-violet
Dark sapphire
Medium blue-green
Deep violet-blue

The third color, although described as a medium blue, would be extremely smart. Grey also could be worn to unusually good effect when accompanied by jade for jewelry.

The following colors remain on the unfavorable list:

Avoid
Light and medium green
Red
Pure yellow
Pure pink or rose
Tans and yellow browns
Pinkish purple

Sooke

On Monday evening Mrs. J. R. Hawkins gave a party in honor of the sixteenth birthday of her daughter Beatrice. The rooms were prettily decorated with Autumn leaves and chrysanthemums. The juvenile guests, who numbered sixteen, indulged in clever competition games. The serving of refreshments concluded the evening.

The committee of the Holy Trinity Church has arranged to hold an entertainment in Sooke Hall on Tuesday, December 1, opening at 7:30 o'clock. The Melchior Dramatists will give a three-act play. This will be followed by a sale of superlatives and dancing. The Sooke three-piece orchestra will supply the music for the evening.

Guests at the Hotel Helvedere over the week include Mr. R. A. Lowe, of Vancouver; Mr. C. D. Noakes, Japan and Victoria; H. Mikelsen, Wankow; Mr. and Mrs. Harlan, Messrs. J. and R. Todd, of Victoria; Mr. G. Gordon Riddell, Miss Annie T. Riddell, Victoria; Miss Gladys Grainger, New York; Miss Edna Steele, Miss Agnes Steele, Victoria; Mr. L. I. Harrison, Birmingham, England; Mr. C. M. Read, Lincoln, England.

Mrs. H. Fleher and family spent the week-end at their home here. Mr. R. H. Pooley, M.P.P., spent a day hunting in the Sooke Hills, and was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. Fleher over the week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Locke entertained last evening in honor of their daughter Joan. The party included about thirty guests. The evening was spent in games and dancing. A delightful supper was served. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Geo. McIntosh, Mr. and Mrs. Horwood, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Seymour, Miss Nan Seymour, George McIntosh, Isabella McIntosh, Mr. and Mrs. T. Blight, Mr. and Mrs. G. Blight, Kenneth Blight, Mr. C. Rowles, of Victoria, and others.

Campbell River

Mr. William Sloan and Mr. Wm. Hogan spent the week-end at Campbell River on a hunting trip. They were the guests of Mrs. M. Higgins at Campbellton.

Mrs. Nettie Masters from the I. T. Camp Five, spent the week-end with Mrs. M. Higgins.

Mr. Johnston, former principal of the Campbell River School spent the holiday at Forbes Landing.

Mr. Waddleton, who is teaching at Huntington, spent the holidays with Dr. and Mrs. Ziegler.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles McDonald, of Cumberland, paid a few days' visit with Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Crawford.

Mr. Geo. Moore, general manager of the Merrill & Ring Lumber Co., was in town on a business trip.

Misses Elin Thulin and Rud Feeney spent the holiday at Nanaimo.

Miss Johnston, former nurse at the local hospital, left for Vancouver Wednesday morning.

An enjoyable dance was held in the Community Hall at Campbellton on Saturday night.

Misses E. and R. Wickstrom have returned to Campbellton from Fraser Mills.

The trim launch, Pride of the West, was in port with Messrs. Stuart, Stevens and Clarke, commercial travelers from Vancouver.

Mr. L. C. McFarlane, cruiser for the Bloedel, Stewart & Welch Company, passed through Campbell River.

Dr. Richardson's daughter-in-law, Mrs. Wm. Richardson, of Nelson, is spending a few weeks visiting here.

Sister Mary Mark has returned to Campbell River on a visit.

NEWS OF THE SPORTING WORLD

Last Year's Clubs Will Hold Their Franchises

Amateur Hockey League Is Sure of Four Teams Competing for Title—Will Meet Tonight for Final Arrangements—Rink Opens on 18th

At the executive meeting of the Victoria Amateur Hockey League held in the Chamber of Commerce last night, all of last year's clubs were on hand to claim their franchises.

The contract with the Arena management was accepted by the executive and the secretary of the league was instructed to write confirming the acceptance of the same by the league.

In addition to the four last year's clubs the Ex-Victoria High School have made application for a franchise in the Amateur Hockey League.

Tonight at 8 o'clock at the Chamber of Commerce, the executive will meet to decide finally which clubs will form the league for this season. The club managers will have to produce a list of their signed players so as to insure the officials that they can put up a good brand of hockey.

George I. Warren and Charlie Campbell were elected as delegates of the local body to the meeting of the B.C.A.H.A., which is being held in Vancouver on Saturday.

With the opening of the rink a week away, players are beginning to get their skates sharpened up, ready to take the ice a few days later. The public will be given the opportunity of seeing the teams practice and get a line on their favorites.

RICKARD'S PROMOTIONS REPRESENT MILLIONS

Tex Has Been at It for Twenty Years—Gates Get Bigger All the Time

The Dempsey-Turney heavyweight championship battle was the seventh and the biggest title spectacle Tex Rickard has staged.

It had been almost twenty years to the day that Rickard made his first plunge in pugilistic promotion, his initial venture being the famous Glavin-Nelson lightweight championship event at Goldfield, Nev., on September 3, 1906. Since that day Tex has mounted to a position as the foremost promoter of professional sports in the world, the head of a big corporation whose business in New York annually runs well into the millions.

Rickard's first heavyweight fight was the Jeffries-Johnson bout in 1910 at Reno, where it was shifted after being barred from San Francisco. That fight drew a record "gate" at the time, $270,000, the top prize being $50. The only fight for which tickets have been priced as high since then were the Dempsey-Willard and Dempsey-Carpenter bouts.

In six previous heavyweight title battles Rickard has promoted the fight receipts have aggregated close to $4,000,000, of which $2,000,000, picked through the turnstiles for the last two spectacles the promoter has staged.

The record receipts for these fights follows:

Johnson-Jeffries at Reno, Nev., 1910	$270,000
Willard-Moran at Md. Sq. Garden, 1916	151,000
Dempsey-Willard at Toledo, O., 1919	425,000
Dempsey-Brennan at Md. Sq. Garden, 1920	200,000
Dempsey-Carpenter at Jersey City, 1921	1,624,000
Dempsey-Firpo at Polo Grounds, N.Y., 1923	1,188,000
Total	$3,887,000

LEAGUE LEADERS WILL MEET Y.M.C.A. TEAM

Equimault and Saanich Rovers Should Provide Interesting Game in Junior Soccer League

Junior soccer fixtures for Saturday are announced as follows:

Five C's vs. Y.M.C.A.
Equimault vs. Saanich Rovers.

The Five C's, who are at present leading the league by a good margin, will have the Y.M.C.A. to contend with on Saturday. The latter club suffered a bad defeat last week at the hands of the Saanich Rovers, but with a strengthened line-up they will be out to try and lower the colors of the league leaders.

Equimault and Saanich Rovers should provide an interesting battle this week. The junior dockers were defeated by the league leaders by a 2-0 score.

The Five C's line-up announced for Saturday is as follows: Jellman, J. Taylor and N. Martin; E. Charlton, E. Viggers and H. Brynjolfsson; S. Sutton, C. Collins, S. Essler, F. Groves, F. Viggers; reserves, C. MacDonald and J. Woods.

Soccer Notes From The Midweek Clubs

By OBSERVER

With the conclusion of the first half of the midweek schedule local fans have had the pleasure of witnessing one of the keenest fought races in the history of soccer in this city. The Hudson's Bay, last year's champions, are tied with the Tillamums for the title and when they meet next week to settle the issue a good game is expected. Rennie & Taylor, who last year missed each half of the schedule by one point, find themselves in a corresponding position this year on completion of the first half.

The four clubs which form the Wednesday League are split up into two divisions. The Clubmen and the Bays are for the better part youngsters with little or no experience, while the Bakers and the Navy have a bunch of trained material. The Dough Punchers are without doubt the best team in the midweek league on paper and in fact, the games on the field have increased their stock one hundred per cent.

The Hudson's Bay eleven, captained by Percy Shrimpton, peer of net custodians, are carrying a bunch of youngsters in their forward line who, although they lack experience, have plenty of speed and at times have been seen to make some exceptionally good plays.

The Tillamums, who are just a young team, managed by Doug Fletcher, made a good run and were looked upon as favorites for the first half, but the Bakers took the wind out of their sails and dampened their hopes of winning the title. The Clubmen are a fast and snappy team, but inclined to rely on the kick and rush kind of game. With a little more practice and perhaps an experienced player to steady them down, the Tillamums should give a good account of themselves.

Rennie & Taylor's, who have such players as Davies, Hay, Speak, McKinnon and Tupman are perhaps the most promising team in the midweek league. On paper they have a team that is easily the best in the Wednesday League, but they failed to function early in the first half. In their last two or three games they seemed to have got set and are now taking the measure of all comers.

The Navy, who finished in the cellar, gratified their supporters this week, when they beat the league-leading Hudson's Bay by a 4-0 score. The sailors have such good men as A. Whyte, Robinson, Drake, Peters and Roberts, and are looked upon to make a good showing in the second half of the schedule.

Colwood Ladies Will Hold Meeting Today

The annual general meeting of the ladies of the Colwood Golf and Country Club will be held this afternoon at the Sprout Shaw School.

Canadian Boxer Weds in England

"SOLDIER" JONES
Former light-heavyweight champion of Canada, who has been boxing in London for the past two years, married an English girl in London last night. He is a native of Quebec.

199; Faithful Girl, 107; Emma Howard, 106; Life, 105; A. Lester, 103; Miss Eyer, 114; Billy D., 117; Sonny Bunny, 117.

Seventh race, five and half furlongs—Dan Hogan, 102; Stage Star, 110; Four Plush, 108; Texas Hanger, 109; Ring, 98; Ragsdale King, 104; Coland, 111; Cheat, 98; Salton, 106; Cornflower, 108; La Beau, 101.

Suats Bike Rider With Length of Hose

BERLIN, Nov. 10.—For a few minutes last night the six-day bike race fans were in a frenzy and the excitement was not due to sprint. The trainer of the French team of Wambst and Lacquehay hit the German rider Tiltz with a length of fire hose as he was going around the track. This was after Wambst and Lacquehay had threatened to quit, charging Tiltz with illegal interference. The trainer was fined $25. Wambst and Lacquehay were leading at the 121st hour, having covered 1,897 miles.

Sportive Punches

By the "Old Un"

When WINSTON CHURCHILL put that tax on horse race betting into his budget he certainly started something.

The law imposing the tax went into effect rather late in the racing season, but it seems to have created quite a disturbance on the Old Country "turf."

Horse race betting is unique in being a form of gambling which, although illegal was nevertheless carried on in more than one country for many years openly and winked at by the authorities.

And then the authorities started to do something more than wink. They suddenly opened their eyes wide and awakened to the possibilities of collecting public revenue from what was officially regarded as a vice.

And this vicious proceeding on the part of the Old Country Government is apparently not at all to the liking of the race course proprietors' association in England.

Neither does it coincide with the views of the Old Country "bookie." The public curtails its betting activity, the bookie goes on strike and the race course proprietors turn to the discussion of the possibility of installing pari-mutuels on the courses.

It may be easier for a pecksniffan government to collect its little bit from the gambling public when machines are used, but that is all.

It will not either eradicate the gambling instinct or make the collecting of revenue by the Government from what its laws brand as a crime any more excusable.

And the abolition of the bookie will detract not a little from the picturesque quality of the race course without making it any less sinful, if to bet is a sin (which is open to argument).

And they'll do it all for the same reason, as they do in some other countries we know of where bookies are supposed to have been abolished.

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 9.—With a view to protecting hunters who are forced to pay from $2 to $15 per day to shoot at commercial hunting clubs, State Senator Inman, of Sacramento, will introduce a bill at the next session of the Legislature to place such clubs under the supervision and control of the State Fish and Game Commission.

More government interference with a gentleman's sport and recreation! But does this mean that the State will guarantee the sportsman anything else but to shoot at besides the club for three to fifteen bucks?

Variety almost swept the card at the recent intercollegiate championship track and field meet at Toronto, scoring 78 points to McGill's 32 and Queen's 16. Above are shown three of the winners. On the left is Jack Davenport, of Hamilton, who won the pole vault for variety with a leap of 11 feet 6 3-8 inches. In the center is H. Shamsay, the sensational Midland high school boy, who won both the high and broad jumps with 5 feet 11 3-4 inches and 21 feet 1 1-4 inches. On the right is S. Trenouth, of Saranac, who won the three-mile race after a hard struggle, setting a new record of 15:12 3-5 seconds. The old mark was 31 4-5 seconds slower.

Basketball Entries To Close Tonight

ENTRIES for the Victoria and District Basketball Association will positively close tonight, the last time for receiving them being at the meeting to be held at the Y.M.C.A. at 8 o'clock.

Judging from the number already ready in, and the enthusiasm evinced, also from the fact that already some new clubs have been announced, the O'Byrne sisters are known to be on the way. It is almost certain that the league this year will be bigger and better than ever.

Canadian Athletes in United States Events

TORONTO, Nov. 10.—Canadian athletes are at present trekking to the United States, where they will compete in various events. Following an announcement that the O'Byrne sisters and Shier Mendelson, all of Toronto, swimming stars, were entered for the twenty-two-mile Catalina Island swim off the coast of California, George Young, who holds many Canadian swimming records, left here today en route for the Pacific Coast. He has announced his intention to enter the long swim. He was accompanied by Bill Hastings, diving champion, who will also compete in the event. The two young men left by motorcycle and expect to reach the Coast in three weeks.

Possibly four Canadian runners will meet the pick of the United States runners in the nine-mile road race at Berwick, Pa., on the American Thanksgiving Day. Charles Snell, of Toronto, has sent in his entry for the race, as has Percy Weyer, little known, from another local club, and Cliff Bricker, of Galt. It is quite possible that Johnny Miles, the Maritime star, also will make the jump to Pennsylvania.

Elk Bowlers Win From Nanaimo Club

NANAIMO, Nov. 10.—The Elks Lodge bowling team took the odd point from the Nanaimo Club in last night's bowling fixture. It was high man with 188 pins and T. James had high average with 143. The scores follow:

Bill Coles to Ride In Six-Day Grind

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—"Bill" Coles, of Brantford, Ont., amateur bicycle champion of the United States and first foreign rider to win the premier amateur cycling honors in the United States, has signed to ride in the coming six-day bicycle race in Madison Square Garden, Nov. 11-12. They have requested the Vancouver Rugby Union to arrange some matches on the Coast, and, following Tuesday's meeting of the local body, it was announced that the Maoris would probably play three games here.

English and Indian Cricket Compared

(By a Correspondent in The London Times)

As one who has played first-class cricket in India and who has seen first-class cricket in England, I hope that I may be permitted to give a few impressions.

Cricket in India, compared with that in England, is in its infancy. Yet it is improving fast, and it is only a matter of time when India will be able to send teams to play representative matches in England. At present, no doubt, the English are superior to the Indians in all departments of the game; but in varying degrees. From the spectacular point of view, English batting is very interesting. The one idea of the English batsman seems to be to score, no matter in what style and how. Batmen of the type of Victor Trumper are phenomena of the past. I have seen great batsmen such as Hobbs, Macartney, Bardsley and Sutcliffe, but I have never been so much stirred by one of them as I have been when I saw Naidu or Vibhali or Jal or "Doll" play an innings. These batsmen, though they cannot be compared with Hobbs, Rutcliffe or Woolley in point of efficiency, are very interesting in themselves.

Style is different. Their style of play, their method of scoring, are so different. It is a treat to see graceful Vibhali knock up 100 or 150 runs, or to see a hard-driving Naidu driving the ball to all points of the boundary. Yet, though this may be very interesting from the point of view of present-day cricket it is a great defect. Today, the "sticky" type of batsman carries everything before him. This matter what may be said against him, he has come to stay for good. The most attractive thing about cricket is its glorious uncertainty, and the only way of eliminating or at least diminishing this is by very careful play and patience. This is the one great thing the Indian batsman has yet to learn from the Englishman, who risks nothing, and is very watchful and patient. The Indian batsman, on the other hand, is very enterprising. He forgets that cricket is a game of patience, and that accounts for the comparatively poor scores made in first-class cricket in India. But this is not the only reason for the comparatively poor scores. The climate has got a lot to do with it. It takes a batsman out much sooner. Again, cricket pitches in India are not so true as they are here. They are a great handicap to the batsman, especially during the monsoon season, when most of the matches are played.

English bowlers better. As regards bowling, I think that the English are infinitely our superiors. Our bowlers have not the same command over the ball as have the English. The reason is that the best English bowlers are not braggarts. They have not to bowl against the "sticky" type of batsman. Further, the Indian cricket helps them, and the Indian batsmen lack patience. Thus the bowler finds that he diminishes the side pretty cheaply. No doubt on a hard December wicket the ground helps very little. This immediately brings into prominence brain work, tact and fast bowling. This does not mean that the Indian bowlers lack anything which the English bowlers possess, but on account of the comparatively poor defence of the opposition the best is not brought out as played.

Wonderful fielding. As regards fielding, Indian possesses a fielder who would draw applause from any crowd in the world. But it is not the few who count; it is the many. In gathering the ball and returning it the Indian fieldman is very good. In first-class cricket fielding is all important. This fact the Indian player seems to forget.

Except in big towns, such as Bombay, Indian cricket is not played on such a large scale as is the game in England, and that accounts for the comparatively small number of really good players. Yet the game is becoming more and more popular every day and has already reached a standard which is not to be ignored. One thing strikes me as most peculiar, and that is the standard of cricket here in the ordinary clubs, colleges and universities, excepting, of course, Oxford and Cambridge. Without prejudice, I think that the average standard of such clubs, colleges and universities in India is undoubtedly superior. Teams of London colleges and teams of some Oxford and Cambridge colleges are poor as compared with the Indian; so also is the standard of the ordinary clubs. It is surprising to think that the best players here are so superior to the best in India, while the average player of colleges and ordinary clubs here is inferior to the average player of the same in India. I think that in India, for an average player, there are greater facilities for playing cricket than there are here.

V.A.S.C. CLUB NIGHT PROVES VERY POPULAR

Life-Saving Classes and Handicap Races Are Carried Out at Crystal Garden Pool Weekly

About one hundred members of the Victoria Amateur Swimming Club were on hand at the Crystal Garden last night at the regular "Club Night."

Increased interest is shown in the life-saving classes which are conducted every Wednesday and last night about forty-five members were under training.

The weekly club handicap race was curtailed owing to the death of Mrs. McNeill, wife of Jock McNeill, popular president of the club. This event, however, will be carried out next week.

Martin Connor has started a new class in life-saving and will start another class shortly.

It is expected that competitions will commence in the near future for the Ansonby trophy, which was donated to the local branch of the Royal Life-Saving Society by Reeve Ansonby, of Oak Bay.

Some Amazing Feats By Marathon Golfers

By W. GREENWOOD

When Mr. Leveson-Gower, one June day in 1906, played seven rounds of the Ottawa golf links, starting at a quarter to four in the morning and holding his last ball at 7:30 in the evening, after a tramp of thirty miles, the world of golfers wondered at such an amazing feat of endurance.

But in Scotland there was a doughty young lieutenant, Mr. H. B. Lumsden, who was by no means content to leave the palm in Canada. He set himself the task of going one better by doing eight rounds in 84 hours. Aberdeen Club's course at Balgownie; and by the time he had completed his task was so little fatigued that he put in the day before retiring for a well-earned night's repose, his average for the nine rounds being a trifle over eighty-two strokes—fifteen less than Mr. Leveson-Gower's achievement.

A 2 A.M. Start. But even this magnificent feat did not long content the militant soldier, who felt sure he could compass a dozen rounds in the day. Perching his ball on a little bit of sand one morning at twenty minutes past two, he began his attack on the most marvellous golfing feat on record. Hour after hour he chased the flying ball, doing his first round in 85 strokes, his second and third in 81 apiece, the fourth in 77, and so on until, after eighteen hours of play, excluding intervals for meals, he completed his dozen rounds in 990 strokes, representing the wonderful average of 82½ for each round. So little tired was he that he jumped on his bicycle and rode some miles to his home.

But even such enthusiasm as Mr. Lumsden and Mr. Leveson-Gower have had no mean rivals among past generations of players. Fifty years ago Mr. W. G. Bloxsum did a dozen rounds at Aberdeen (which course has no mean rival in the world), while on another occasion he compassed sixteen rounds on the nine-hole course at Musselburgh, and was beaten only by a seventh round when his partner's caddy threw down his club in disgust.

Veteran Quartette. Even time is powerless to damp the enthusiasm of the golfer, as was proved one bitterly cold Winter day, when four Scottish octogenarians enjoyed a foursome at Musselburgh, the result a similar match at Westward Ho! The doyen of this veteran quartette was Mr. Thomson, who was in his ninetieth year, while the "baby" would never see his eightieth birthday again.

The records of Scottish golf include many feats which would tax the skill of our best players of today to rival. In 1758 two members of the Burgess Golfing Society engaged for a wager to drive a ball over St. Giles' steeple, Edinburgh, which rises to a height of 141 feet. Each of the competitors (Mr. Screech, of Leith, and Mr. Jamieson, a printer) took up his station at the southeast corner of Parliament Square with his allowance of six balls; and each succeeded in sending several of his balls well over the weathercock into the Advocate's Close. For a similar wager Mr. Donald McLean, a Writer to the Signet, drove a ball over Melville's Monument in St. Andrew Square; and several successful attempts have been made to drive a ball from Hume's Links to the top of Arthur's Seat, a feat of almost inconceivable skill, and difficulty.

Bananas Flight Draw. TORONTO, Nov. 10.—Jackie Johnston, 12½, of Toronto, bantamweight champion of Canada, and Phil Verde, 12½, of Syracuse, fought a ten-round draw at a theatre here last night. Johnston's title was not at stake.

Ex-McGill Man Gets His Chance to Show His Wares in Professional Hockey Company

MONTREAL, Nov. 10.—Jerry Reid, former McGill goalkeeper, is being given a chance with the Montreal Maroons, as the probable second net guardian the Maroons expect to carry on the roster this winter.

The Montreal Maroons left last night for Stratford, where they will play an exhibition game. On Friday they will start their final drills preparatory to leaving Monday for New York, where they will open the National Hockey League season against the Rangers at Madison Square Garden on Tuesday, remaining over in Gotham to play the Americans one week from Thursday and returning for their first home game against Canadiens one week from Saturday.

Gertrude Ederle Not Interested in Bit in Catalina Island Swim

SEATTLE, Nov. 10.—Gertrude Ederle, the first woman to swim the English Channel, here on a vaudeville tour declared today that "The Catalina Island swim doesn't interest me—not unless they make me mad." She had been asked if she would attempt to swim across San Pedro Channel to Santa Catalina Islands.

"It burns me up, the way they try to insinuate that I can't do it," she said. "I'm not interested a bit. I could do it if I wanted to, but I don't want to. What's it compared to the English Channel. I took a chance in the channel. I was determined to do it or die."

Carpet Bowlers Will Play Their Openers at Willows on Friday

Opening games in the schedule of the Capital City District Carpet Bowling League will be played Friday evening. Two games at the Willows, one at St. John's Men's Club, and one at the Burnside centre.

On Monday evening, at St. Mark's Men's Hall, the executive of the league will meet to arrange for the complete schedule of both divisions, the entries for the Byng Trophy being much in excess of last year.

GOVERNMENT MOVES TO SECURE BLOCK IN PEACE RIVER

Among the matters that were taken up with Hon. J. H. King, Minister of Health and Civil Re-establishment at Ottawa, and the members of the local Government during his visit to the Coast, was that of the taking of steps looking to the return of the Peace River land block to the Province of British Columbia.

The subject has become quite a live one in recent times, and the Provincial Government, acting on the suggestions and arguments put forth in support of the return of the land, has made a move in the direction of securing it.

Hon. Dr. J. H. King will take the matter up at an early date with the members of the Dominion Cabinet.

COL. W. W. FOSTER TO ADDRESS FOURANDEX

Local Company Will Tender Dinner to Well-Known B.C. Figure Who Speaks on Passchendaele

COL. W. W. FOSTER

On Saturday evening there will be a formal dinner tendered by the Victoria Company of the Fourandex to Col. W. W. Foster, of Vancouver, who will be present as the guest of the company, and will address them, taking as his subject, Passchendaele. The event is one of the outstanding ones connected with Armistice week.

Col. Foster is a talented speaker and will be listened to on this subject with the greatest attention. His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, Commander Nelles, R.C.N., and Mr. W. C. Nichol will also be guests of the Fourandex at this function. The dinner will be served in the dining-room of the Chamber of Commerce at 7 o'clock on Saturday evening.

In view of the fact that this is Armistice Week the request is made that all attending will wear the red poppy commemorative of the event.

CHIEF JUSTICE SAYS MINIMUM WAGE HOLDS

Conviction in Police Court is Upheld—Appellants' Suggestion Considered Unworkable

VANCOUVER, Nov. 10.—British Columbia lumbermen lost the second round of their fight against enforcement by the Minimum Wage Board of its order fixing the minimum wage in that industry at forty cents an hour, when Chief Justice Hunter this morning upheld the conviction of Robertson & Hackett Sawmills, Ltd., in police court on Tuesday by Magistrate Shaw. In the test case brought by the lumbermen to test the validity of the board's act.

Mr. J. W. deB. Farris, K.C., applied for an order to quash the conviction, on a stated case granted by Magistrate Shaw. Mr. Donald Donaghy appearing for the prosecution. Chief Justice Hunter pointed out that there was no other act of the same kind which might have assisted him. He explained that Mr. J. W. deB. Farris, K.C., counsel for appellant company, contended that it was incumbent on the board before making any order, to conduct a systematic inquiry into all industry. His Lordship stated that he did not think that was a sound construction of the act, which intended that the board should hold inquiries and make orders from time to time. Otherwise, if Mr. Farris' contention were upheld, the act would be unworkable in his Lordship's opinion. It was the duty of the court to make legislation workable, he added. He dismissed the appeal.

The technical violation had been effected by failure of Robertson & Hackett Sawmills, Ltd., to comply with the order of the board to post a copy of the order in its mills.

Wife Beater Escapes Lash on Technicality

VANCOUVER, Nov. 10.—Omission of a certain word from a charge of beating his wife, who was in a delicate condition, saved William Emery, thirty-five, apartment house caretaker, from being sentenced to the lash. EARLIEST CENTRE OF MAYAN CULTURE

City of Lubaantun in British Honduras Yields Many Relics

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The possibility that the ancient Mayan city of Lubaantun may prove to be one of the earliest centres of organized culture in Central America is suggested in a report issued by Sir Frederick Kenyon, director of the British Museum, on the work of a recent expedition there.

Sir Frederick said that the archaeological discoveries in British Honduras on the site of Lubaantun promised the greatest importance in revealing the ancient civilization of Central America. The discoveries were made by Lady Richmond Brown and Frederick A. Mitchell-Hedges, explorers, and Thomas W. F. Gann, well-known Central American archaeologist. The expedition returned to England on October 3, carrying a rare collection of relics.

Sir Frederick's report on the expedition, which excavated Lubaantun last spring, says that the site is one of the largest yet discovered within the area known to have been the home of the ancient Mayan. A preliminary survey of the site showed that, behind the final structures excavated, there were still three periods of other definite architectural styles, which must carry the date of the founding of the city back to the very beginning of the Mayan civilization. Further researches, Sir Frederick believes, may prove that Lubaantun is one of the earliest centres of culture in Central America.

The earliest style discovered indicates that the builders were a primitive people, using stone tools. Pyramids and hill terraces uncovered indicate that there must have been an extensive population working for many years under strong central control. The fragments of finely-painted pottery which were found also show a highly developed art among the people, with a long history behind it.

The expedition made an extensive collection of relics of the Chibchas Indians, the ancient inhabitants of Colombia, a people who attained some degree of civilization.

ENDURED AGONY FROM BRUISES AND STRAIN

Hurt in bad fall, young woman makes quick recovery

A young woman at Bushnell's Basin, Monroe County, New York, fell and was badly bruised and strained.

"I suffered agony," she writes, "but I used Sloan's Liniment and it relieved the pain right away. Now I don't feel it at all."

What is the secret of the almost magical powers of this remarkable remedy?

Simply the fact that Sloan's doesn't merely deaden the nerves so that you don't feel the pain. It really drives out the pain by helping the conditions that are causing it.

Right to the affected spot it brings a healing stream of fresh, revivifying blood, driving out congestion, relaxing contracted muscles. The pain stops as a natural consequence.

So clean and easy to use, too. Just rub it on lightly without rubbing, and the liniment will do its work. Get a bottle today and have it on hand. All druggists have it—35 cents.

COURTENAY RIVER DREDGING DISCUSSED

Invitation Will Be Extended by Board of Trade to Mr. A. W. Neill, M.P., and Mr. J. P. Ford

COURTENAY, Nov. 9.—Transportation was the subject that occupied the larger part of the Courtney-Cornox Board of Trade meeting on Tuesday night. The president, Mr. Wm. Eadie, Mr. R. C. Hurford and Mr. E. R. Beall had previously been appointed a committee in connection with the question of water transportation.

Mr. Hurford reported progress towards getting the daily boat for Courtney River. The committee had seen Capt. Truan of the Vancouver-Courtenay Transportation Company, who had given the committee to understand that his company could not put on a boat unless a loan of $10,000 could be arranged. The money was required to re-engine the boat proposed for this service with a Diesel engine.

It had cost the company some forty thousand dollars to work up the Vancouver-Courtenay service to its present condition. The company would be willing to turn over the insurance to the city if such a loan was arranged. Capt. Truan had also pointed out that a pile of rock in the Courtney river, left from former dredging operations, was a menace to navigation, and that the rocks should be thrown back another fifty feet.

In connection with the general question of dredging the river, it was decided to invite Mr. A. W. Neill, M.P., and Mr. Ford, the district engineer, to attend a meeting in Courtney to discuss the matter. The advantages of constructing a wharf lower down the river at a point where the width permits easy turning of boats was also discussed, and will be brought up again at a later date.

It was evident, however, that it is necessary to dredge the river at once as the Courtney Mill to facilitate transportation up to this point. A further proposal for boat service, this time from Mr. R. N. Taylor, a former resident of Courtney, was received. He had a boat in sight which he suggested the city should charter. The craft is of forty tons, equipped with motor winches and derricks to insure quick dispatch of freight and capable of accommodating twenty-five passengers. Diesel-engine and a speed of nine knots.

Mr. Wm. Douglas reported on the proposed road down to Kye Bay Sands. He had seen Mr. W. P. Heavan, the assistant district engineer. They will look over the situation and report further. Three new members of the board were proposed and elected in the persons of Messrs. Hewell, Smille and D. Cudmore.

South Saanich Institute Holds Chicken Supper and Dance for Thanksgiving

KEATING, Nov. 10.—An outstanding success in every way was the chicken supper and dance which was held by the South Saanich Women's Institute in Temperance Hall on Monday evening in celebration of Thanksgiving Day.

The supper room was decorated in appropriate colors with streamers from the lamps. The three long tables, centred with bunches of various colored autumn flowers, were laden with numerous good things. The first tables were ready about seven-thirty and were promptly filled by the guests, a second sitting being necessary. After justice had been done to the meal, the guests repaired to the main hall, which was also decorated in the thanksgiving colors and where Kinlock's three-piece orchestra dispensed excellent dance music for the remainder of the evening, with Mrs. McLean and Mr. Raymond Brethour, of Sidney, kindly supplying the extras in a capable manner. Card tables were prepared for the non-dancers and several tables were occupied.

Arrangements for the affair were in the hands of the directors, assisted by committees, each one working hard for the success of the affair. Many guests were present from Victoria, Sidney and other districts, all voting the affair a great success.

MRS. C. F. DAVIE AND FOUR MEN ARE CHOSEN FROM COWICHAN PART OF RIDING

Resolutions Will Include One for Abolition of Absentee Vote, and Another on Educational Costs

DUNCAN, Nov. 10.—A largely attended meeting of Cowichan Conservatives was held in St. John's Hall last night, for the purpose of electing five delegates to attend the Provincial Conservative Convention in Kamloops on November 22. Mr. O. T. Smythe, president of the Cowichan-Newcastle Conservative Association, occupied the chair.

The delegates elected were as follows: Mrs. C. F. Davie, and Messrs. O. T. Smythe and J. May Muttter, of Duncan; J. B. McMillan, of Westholme; and H. W. May, of Cowichan Station. The delegates were unanimously elected.

A written request from the Duncan Women's Conservative Club that one of their number be included in the list of elected delegates, met with instant favor, and the nomination from the floor of the meeting by one of the club's members, of Mrs. C. F. Davie, their president, was carried by unanimous consent, without a ballot being called for.

Balloting for the four remaining delegates resulted in the gentlemen named being selected from among twelve placed in nomination. The remaining five delegates to which Cowichan-Newcastle is entitled, will be chosen at a meeting to be held in Ladysmith on Thursday evening.

Resolutions asking for the abolition of the absentee vote, and another dealing with educational costs will be placed before the convention's resolutions committee.

Women's Guild Holds Monthly Meeting

SIDNEY, Nov. 10.—The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Guild of St. Andrew's Church was held at the home of Mrs. S. Roberts on Wednesday afternoon. The president, Mrs. J. J. White, occupied the chair. The secretary, Mrs. Ward, read the minutes, which were adopted, and the treasurer's report was read and found satisfactory. There was a good attendance of members and several business matters were attended to. A large number of beautiful articles were handed in for the sale of work to be held in Matthew Hall on November 25. The ladies have been working energetically for the past few months for this bazaar and are pleased with the lovely articles which will be for sale and which will make such appropriate Christmas gifts. Mrs. Roberts, assisted by Mrs. McKenzie, then served a dainty tea, and the meeting adjourned to meet next month at the home of Mrs. Whiting.

A general meeting of the North Saanich Liberal-Conservative Association will be held at the Sea Gull Inn on Friday at 8 p.m., for the purpose of electing a delegate to the Provincial convention in Kamloops on November 22.

To Choose Delegate

METCHOSIN, Nov. 10.—On Monday evening next, November 15, a meeting of the Conservative Association will be held in the Hall Committee room at 8 o'clock, in order to elect a delegate for the convention.

Former Greek Dictator Said to Be Deranged

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Dispatches from the island of Crete reaching Athens indicate that the former Greek dictator, General Pangalos, for some time has been showing signs of mental derangement, says a dispatch to The Exchange Telegraph from Athens. Lately, the dispatch adds, Pangalos has imagined that he is Emperor of Byzantium and has demanded that he be taken to Constantinople. In some quarters, it is suspected that he is simulating in the hope of obtaining lighter punishment. The government of General Pangalos was overthrown in August by the present Premier, General Kondylis, and Pangalos was sent to Crete.

MAKE ANOTHER EFFORT ON HOSPITAL

Gyro Club Offers Suggestion to Finance Shortage on Building Fund of Institution

NANAIMO, Nov. 10.—The City Council last evening was in receipt of a resolution from the local Gyro Club favoring the Council to place another hospital by-law before the ratepayers, money raised by such by-law to be regarded practically as a loan to the Hospital Board. The letter from the Gyro Club was signed by Mr. M. A. E. Plante, vice-president of the club, and he explained that it was simply a copy of a letter being forwarded to various organizations of the city and asking their endorsement. Following the preamble, the resolution reads:

"Now, therefore, be it resolved that the Nanaimo Hospital Board be requested to petition the Municipal Council to again place a by-law before the ratepayers of the City of Nanaimo, asking for the required sum of thirty-five thousand dollars, at the same time the Hospital Board pledging payment of the annual sinking fund and interest required for the retirement of the said loan maturity, the adoption of which scheme would but mean the return, for value received, to the municipality annually, the amount of the municipality's grant."

Alderman Plante explained that the letter was merely a covering letter to inform the Council of what is being done. It was received and filed.

Mr. E. Hawkins, Assistant Deputy Minister of the Department of Fisheries, wrote the Board enclosing a request from the Shell Oil Company for permission to establish a gasoline supply station on the waterfront at a point sixty feet to the north of the city limits on Newcastle Townsite waterfront. He asked the opinion of the city on the application. The question was left with the city engineer for report.

Alderman Hickman asked for one week's further time to bring in a detailed report on the proposed improvement.

BODY IS FOUND HANGING IN SHED

Octogenarian Had Resided for Long Period in East Cedar District

NANAIMO, Nov. 10.—The body of Mr. David Sunnus, eighty-one, an old-time resident of East Cedar, near here, was discovered by his son, Edward, this morning hanging to the rafters in a wagon shed on his ranch at Cedar. Mr. Sunnus had been in failing health for some time. The police were notified and Staff Sergeant Stephenson and Coroner Hickling brought the remains to Nanaimo, where they now repose at Jenkins, Limited, Undertaking Parlors, from whence the funeral will take place Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The late Mr. Sunnus was a native of Germany, but had resided in this district for the past thirty years, where he was well known.

OPERA ENTHUSIAST RAISES LOUD WAIL

Wants Government to Buy Copyright of Gilbert and Sullivan Productions

LONDON, Nov. 10.—A plea for "nationalization" of the famous Gilbert and Sullivan comic operas is advanced by a writer in this week's Spectator. He points out that, whereas an ephemeral revue or a musical comedy runs only a few months in London, the unique series of operas which are the delight of the English-speaking world are to be seen only a few weeks each year—that is, whenever the company which owns the copyright gives them in some London theatre, where the house is sure to be sold out every night.

In view of this, says this Gilbert and Sullivan fan, why should not the British Government buy out the copyright, paying its present holders an adequate sum, and then lease the rights for the production of celebrated operas, so that London may see them all the year round? Each one of a dozen of them, he maintains, could easily fill a theatre one month yearly, and some, like "Patience," "Pinafore," "The Mikado," etc., for more than a month. At present the rush to secure seats for a limited season is such, he bears the subject of Gilbert and Sullivan mentioned anywhere without some mournful reference to their present inaccessibility. Will not some member of Parliament take up the matter and introduce a bill to secure for us the right and opportunity to go to "Patience" or "Pinafore," instead of "Kiss Me First" or "The Wife Who Guessed?"

SPAIN LEAVES THE LEAGUE

—De Telegraf, Amsterdam.

The Greatest Advance in Home Cleaning Science "POSITIVE AGITATION"

If you can be satisfied with vacuum cleaning, that is one thing. But if you want the latest and most effective cleaning method devised by science, that is something else. This remarkable new method is called "Positive Agitation." It insures getting all the dirt out of your floor coverings, as well as merely of them.

The New Hoover offers you "Positive Agitation" in its perfection. It offers you more—a matchless machine, so advanced as to be revolutionary, surpassing even the previous Hoover in these important particulars:

1 For the first time, it makes possible "Positive Agitation" of floor coverings.

2 By actual test, in the ordinary cleaning time, it beats out and sweeps up from carpets an average of 131% more dirt.

3 It is an even greater rug-saver; the softer a carpet is cleaned with a Hoover the longer that carpet will wear.

4 It is virtually service-proof, every part, including the new motor, requiring no oiling.

5 It increases the efficiency of its remarkable dusting tool because of its 50% stronger suction.

6 Its exclusive dust- and gum-proof bag is now available.

7 Its form and finish are of startling beauty; and every new feature insures greater operating ease.

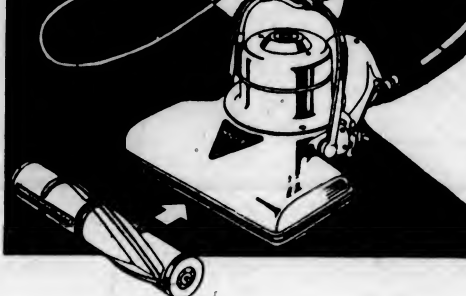

See for yourself the difference between the New Hoover and a vacuum cleaner. See to what new heights home cleaning has now been carried. Visit any Authorized Hoover Dealer—he will deliver the New Hoover for only $6.25 down, and the balance in easy monthly payments.

as accomplished in the new Hoover is positive—the time-tested requirement of thorough rug-cleaning—achieved in an exact scientific process. Such beating, instead of being concentrated in a few violent strokes as with the carpet-beater or broom, is modified by The Hoover into a series of gently-repeated air-cushioned taps. This is achieved by means of a totally new appliance—the exclusive and patented Hoover Agitation Bar—located lower beneath the rug from the floor and beats it on a cushion of air while the machine gently betters out all the embedded grit as the strong suction draws all dirt into the dust-tight bag.

CHAPTER V.

The Port at Zinderneuf

"They learn that they are not as others are. Till some go mad, and some sink prone to earth, and some push stumbling on without a star."

Things began badly and rapidly grew worse in this ill-omened desert fort, isolated in the illimitable desert like a tiny island in the midst of a vast ocean.

Cafard broke out early, and in a very virulent form, both suicidal and homicidal in its nature.

It took this terrible form I verily believe, largely by reason of the fact that Captain Renouf, our Commandant, shot himself after a month of life in this dreadful oven of a place. I do not, of course, know his reason for doing this, but it was rumored that he found he had contracted a horrible disease. This tragedy cast a deeper gloom over a place and a community already gloomy beyond description.

Within a week of this disaster, for a disaster it was to all of us, a most unusual manifestation of cafard was exhibited, when a corporal killed a sergeant and then committed suicide. What Corporal Contran's grievance against the sergeant was, I do not know, but this again was an exceedingly unfortunate affair, as, like Captain Renouf himself, both these men were on the side of the angels, inasmuch as they were decent, fair-minded, and reasonable people.

But the Fates and the Furies had one more disaster in store for the unhappy garrison before they were ready to launch upon our luckless heads the final torrent of destruction. Lieutenant Debussy, the new Commandant, sickened and died, and his place was taken by none other than Adjutant Lejaune.

From the moment in which it was known that the Lieutenant was dead, the atmosphere of Zinderneuf changed from bad to worse and rapidly from worse to the worst possible.

The lion-tamer had entered the cage, and the lions, sullen, infuriated, and desperate, knew that he held in one hand the whip that should drive them to revolt, and in the other the revolver that should instantly punish the first sign of it.

Life so much as the avoidance of death—death from sunstroke, heatstroke, monotony, madness, or Adjutant Lejaune's hand—was all that was more or less obnoxious and "queer" from frayed nerves, resultant upon the terrific heat and the monotony, hardship, and confinement to a little mud oven of a fort; many men were a little mad, and Adjutant Lejaune, in the hollow of whose hand were our lives and destinies, was a great deal more than a little mad.

From the point of view of the authorities, he was sane enough, for he could maintain an iron discipline; make all reports and returns, to the minute and to the letter; and, if attacked, he could be trusted to keep the Tri-couleur flying while there was a man alive in the Fort.

From the point of view of his subordinates, he was nevertheless a madman, and a very dangerous one. At times, I was almost glad that Digby was not with us, much as I missed him; and at those times I missed him.

Weak Throat Strengthened; Voice Was Impaired

For years past public speakers, singers and ministers have been users of CATARRHOZONE in order to give strength and clearness to the voice. Writing from his home in Hilldale, N.B., Mr. John E. Nicholson says: "I had trouble with my throat and nose for some time, and could get no benefit with anything until I tried CATARRHOZONE, which improved me greatly, and I cannot say too much in its favor. I can now speak much more clearly and am always ready to recommend 'Catarrhozone.' Signed: John E. Nicholson."

Catarrhozone is a marvel for throat trouble, catarrh, bronchitis, coughs, colds. Large size $1, small size 50c, at all dealers. (Advt.)

YOUNG WOMEN SUFFER MOST

These Two Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ayer's Cliff, Quebec.—"I have been teaching for three years, and at the end of the year I always feel tired and have no appetite. I was a full sick each month, too having pains in my back until sometimes I was obliged to stop working. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me and I heard many women telling how good it was so I thought it would help me. And it did. Now I take six bottles every year and recommend it to others. —DONALDA FANTREUX, Ayer's Cliff, Quebec."

"Unable to Work"

Canning, Nova Scotia—"I had irregular periods and great suffering at those times, the pains causing vomiting and fainting. I was teaching school and often for some hours I would be unable to attend to my work. Through an advertisement in the papers I knew of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has been of great benefit to me, the troubles being completely relieved. —LAURA J. EATON, Canning, King's County, Nova Scotia."

most wished that Michael was not, much as I depended on him.

Danger to oneself is unpleasant enough, when it is that of being murdered by a lunatic. When to it is added the danger, and constant fear, of a similar fate overtaking people whom one loves, it becomes ten times worse.

Michael and I both begged each other not to be so foolish as to play into Lejaune's hands, by giving him the faintest chance to accuse us of any breach of duty or discipline, or of so much as an insubordinate look, even under the greatest provocation. But we felt that the time would come when Lejaune would cease to wait for an excuse, and that all we could do was to put off the evil day.

I'm positively glad, now, that Digby isn't here," said Michael to me, one terrible afternoon, as we lay sipping our burning cois during siesta hours in our stifling caserne.

"Hank and Buddy too," he added.

"One word of back-chat to Lejaune would have been fatal. . . . And Digby might have done it. Buddy more so. . . . Or if Hank once lost control he'd lay Lejaune out like a poleaxed ox."

"Somebody'll do for him one of these days, if we don't soon get a new commanding officer," said I. "And a good job too."

"Not if," contradicted Michael. "It would be one degree worse than letting him live."

"I'll happen," prophesied I. "Schwartz is getting very mysterious and important these days. Oh, it'll happen all right!"

"That's what I think," said Michael. "And it's about the worst thing that could happen. And if no one goes to Lejaune—for Lejaune—or being two of a gang of silly, murdering mutineers with nothing but a chance of death—thirst and thirst and a firing party at dawn. . . . Hotten!"

"If he's promoted, Lieutenant and kept in command here," he won't last a week," said I. "What's going to happen if they make a plot to mutiny and we're the only two that refuse to join them?"

"We should join Lejaune instead, where dead men tell no tales, I expect," answered Michael.

"What would Sergeant Dupre and Corporal Beldini do?" I speculated.

"If it were a case of saving their skins they'd join the mutineers. I should say—if they were given the option," replied Michael. "They probably love Lejaune as much as we do, and neither of them is exactly too man to die for a principle. . . . If they were to find a gang of bad men, with rifles, round their beds, they'd take the cash and let the damned go."

"No," said I. "I doubt if they'd be given the option."

"So do I," agreed Michael. "They're not loved. They've been whips and scorpions in Lejaune's hands too long and too willingly."

"And if we were 'approached' on the subject of a mutiny and did our miserable duty in warning Lejaune and the others?" I asked.

"I should promptly get thirty days' cells from Lejaune for currying favor with horrible lies, and short shrift from the mutineers for being secret," said Michael.

"Let us give thanks unto the Lord and count our many blessings, my brethren," he yawned, and, at that moment, Schwartz, Haft, Brundt, Beldini, Delarey, and Vogue entered the room and joined Guantalo, Colonna, and Gatto at the other end of it. Here they conversed in low voices, with occasional glances at us.

And to me, one night, came Schwartz, as I sat in a corner of the little courtyard, trying to imagine that the night was cooler than the day, and this spot which faced north, less hot than the others.

He was a huge, powerful hairy ruffian, who would have made a great pirate-captain, for he had brains, courage, and determination. Quite unhampered by over-fine scruples of honor or mercy. He was further endowed with a magnetic personality and power of command.

"Are you enjoying life, Smith?" he asked, seating himself beside me. "Quite as much as you are, Schwartz," I replied.

"Would you like a change?" he enquired.

"I am fond of change," said I. A brief silence ensued.

"Have you ever seen a pig die?" he asked suddenly.

"No," I replied.

"Well, you soon will," he assured me.

"Feeling ill?" I enquired rudely. I did not like the gross Schwartz.

"You are going to see a big pig die," he went on, ignoring my rudeness. "A sacred pig. An adjutant pig. A striped pig. A promoted pig. Oh, an adjutant pig."

"So?" I murmured.

"Yes, Monsieur le Cochon is going to become Monsieur Porc."

"And are you going to become Monsieur Charcutier?" Mr. Pork-butcher, so to speak?" I enquired.

There could be no harm in knowing all there was to know about this business.

"Aha! my friend," growled the German, "that remains to be seen. No many want a cotelette de porc or a saucisson de porc. We shall have to eat lots."

He was silent for a minute and sat beside me, gnawing his knuckles. He was shaking from head to foot with fever, excitement, or disordered nerves.

"Do you want a chance to be charcutier?" he asked.

"I have had no experience of pig-killing," I answered.

"Look you," he growled, seizing my arm, "you will have the experience shortly, either as pig or as butcher, for all here will be cochon or charcutier—in a day or two. See? Choose whether you will be a pig or a butcher. . . . And tell your brother to choose. . . . Meantime, if any man comes to you and says 'porc,' you reply 'cochon.' Then he will know that I have spoken to you, and you will know that he is one of us. See? And you and your brother make up your minds quickly. We don't care either way. There are enough of us—oh, enough. . . . And as somebody approached, he got up and slouched off.

That night I told Michael what I had heard.

The next day it was Guantalo, I was sitting in the same place and he crept towards me purposely.

"Who's that?" he asked, and, hearing my name, came and sat down beside me, as Schwartz had done.

"It's hot," he said, removing his kepi and puffing.

"It is," I agreed.

"Are you fond of hot . . . porc?" he enquired.

"Cochon!" said I playfully.

"Ah!" he replied at once. "What do you think of it all?"

"I never think," said I.

This silenced him for a minute.

"Ten butchers to a pig. What chance has the big pig and one or two bigish pigs against a score of butchers?"

"What do you think of it all?"

"I never think," said Guantalo, with a malevolent smile. I yawned and stretched and affected to settle myself to slumber.

"How would you and your brother like to be pigs if I could find two or three other pigs to join the big pig, and the one or two bigish pigs?" he enquired, nudging me.

I belied my statement that I never thought, and did some rapid thinking.

Had it been arranged that he should sound me as soon as Schwartz had hinted at the assassination of Lejaune? Was it his task to find out whether my name was to be put on the "butcher" list or on the "pig" list? Were all those who did not wholeheartedly join the "butchers" to be shot in their beds on the night of the mutiny?

Or, again, was the rogue trying to find out which was likely to be the stronger party, and did he intend to betray his friends to the non-commissioned officers, if he thought them likely to win?

"How should we like to become pigs, you say?" I temporized. . . . "I should hate to be butchered—shouldn't you?"

"Very much," he replied. . . . "But do you know," he went on, "I have heard of pigs attacking men. Taking them unaware and eating them up. . . ."

"I should hate to be eaten up by a pig—shouldn't you?" I observed.

"Very much," he agreed again.

"One does not want to be slaughtered by butchers nor eaten by pigs."

"No," said I. "Need either happen?"

"Not if one is a wise pig—for-washed and forearmed—who attacks the butchers, taking them unaware," he replied.

"Has the big pig got his eye on the butchers?" I asked.

"No," replied Guantalo. "Nor have the bigish pigs."

"And are you going to open the eyes of the blind pigs?" I enquired.

"I don't know," answered Guantalo. And I had a very strong conviction that he was speaking the truth, for there was a ring of genuine doubt and pusillanimity in his voice. At any rate, if he were lying when he said it, he was lying extraordinarily well.

Colonel E. A. Oliver,
Imperial Oil, Limited,
25 Church Street,
TORONTO, 2, ONT.

My Dear Colonel Oliver:

As you know, we were one of the first companies to purchase Marvelube Motor Oil and we thought you would be glad to know of our satisfactory results in both our Cab and Drive-Yourself Companies.

We are operating 150 De Luxe Cabs, which travel approximately 350,000 miles a month in the city of Toronto. The average taxicab travels 125 miles a day and many of the cabs are in service twenty-four hours a day.

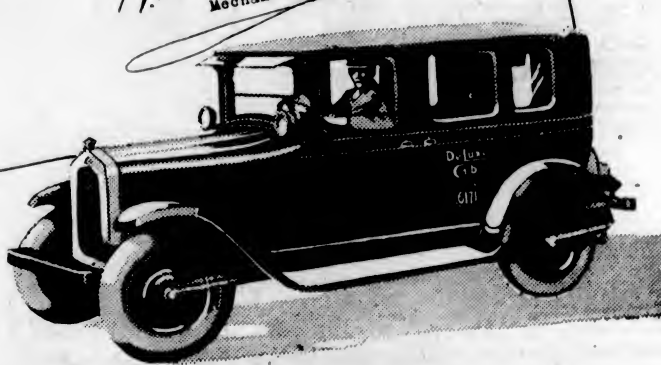

In using Marvelube, we can notice a decrease in our cost of maintenance and material, covering engine maintenance as well as a reduction in total oil consumed. Also, we enjoy longer periods of continued operation without cleaning carbon or grinding valves, taking up connecting rods, main bearings and re-grinding cylinders.

We have experienced a similar expense reduction in our Drive-Yourself business, which now comprises a fleet of over 60 automobiles -- large, six-cylinder, gearshift cars, as well as Chevrolet and Fords. These private cars are rented out to individuals to drive themselves and, in addition to each vehicle averaging about 2,000 miles per month, it is with a different driver daily.

The basis of our success, as is the case with any large taxicab or Drive-Yourself Company, is to give the public the very best service possible. With this in view, the selection of materials, and particularly of oil, is of the utmost importance.

We have no hesitancy in recommending your Marvelube oil to motor car owners as our experience has shown a definite reduction in the cost of operation.

Yours very truly,
DE LUXE CAB, LIMITED,
J. Wallace
Mechanical Superintendent.

DE LUXE CAB LIMITED and De Luxe Drive-Yourself, Limited, buy motor oil with a single idea in mind—namely, results. As a highly-developed business organization, operating automobiles for profit, they appreciate the cost factor of lubricants.

They approach the subject of lubricating oil on a business basis. They do not buy on color, guesses or rumors. The salesman who approaches them with extravagant claims is promptly asked to prove them. Whispering campaigns do not register. With $500,000 worth of the highest-class equipment at stake they cannot take a chance on inferior grades of oil.

The carefully considered endorsement of Marvelube Motor Oil by this organization may be accepted by the private motorist at face value.

DISCOVERY OF IRON AGE IN EDINBURGH

American Archaeologists Desire to Dig in Scottish Capital—Gannets Lay Bare a Stone Parapet

EDINBURGH—(By Mail)—There is more than a touch of romance behind the announcement that a party of American archaeologists are desirous of visiting Scotland on a digging expedition with particular designs on the top of Craiglockhart Hill, Edinburgh. It is now disclosed that on the top of this hill, whose lower slopes are utilized as a golf course, there exists a remarkably well-preserved settlement which dates back to the early Iron Age.

If there had not been a world-war and Edinburgh had not been raided by Zeppelins it is possible that this settlement would never have been unearthed. In May, 1916, when the Zeppelin raid occurred, the Scottish capital was entirely defenceless, but immediately following it steps were taken to rectify that deficiency. One of the inevitable sites for anti-aircraft defences was the west peak of Craiglockhart, and the particular spot chosen was a depression on the top of the hill close against a protecting embankment.

Stone Parapet

The digging of the gunners laid bare a stone parapet, but other interests were more urgent at the moment, and the significance of the discovery was not appreciated. The parapet lay unheeded and exposed until early in 1918, when a party of officers from a concentration camp in the city visited the hill to engage in tactical exercises. During a break in the manoeuvres an officer of the Royal Scots, who today is one of Scotland's leading antiquaries, climbed to the summit of the hill. There his trained eye observed the stonework, and realizing its possibilities he made a careful survey of the whole area. It was made plain to him that along the base of the parapet there had been a row of dwellings, and that through the centuries they had been slowly but completely buried under a heavy deposit of fine black loam.

Further discoveries on the spot include dozens of fragments of animal bones and teeth, broken pottery of coarse make, a fragment of a bronze armlet and another of a jet armlet, and a large quern in an excellent state of preservation. The find was reported to the authorities, but excavation work has not been carried out.

Rooske Roads

Sir.—The report of the delegation to the Hon. Dr. Sutherland last Friday is somewhat misleading. The delegation, headed by Mr. C. E. Whitney Griffith, had no connection whatever with the Sooke delegation who will ask for their road to be re-surfaced.

The request from the East Sooke Farmers' Institute is only concerned with getting an additional road made to connect the East and West Sooke main roads, going past Roche Cove and Mr. Warren's house.

The report sounds as if there were divided opinions on the subject, whereas 124 persons signed the petition in favor of the new road being made.

Empire-Made Films

Sir.—The editorial in Sunday's Colonist dealing with the subject of Empire-made films gives strength to an idea that should never be let drop, namely, Victoria and Vancouver Island's outstanding qualifications for motion picture production. Americans are apparently now "getting wise" to the wonders, the vastness and variety of British Columbia scenery, as the largest corporation of producers, the Famous Players, is preparing to invade this Province and build permanent quarters. The Mayor and Council of Vancouver have been very active for a considerable time in bringing to the American producers notice the claims of their city. About a year ago I read in the Vancouver newspapers how that city was in touch with American film interests. I presume that the decision of the Famous Players to establish is the outcome.

However, no part of the Province is in the same class with Victoria and vicinity. We can claim leadership in sunshine, scenery and seashore. There is no part of the island that cannot be utilized in pictures that would hold the interest of any audience no matter where the picture was shown. This is the supreme opportunity for the British film companies to establish real British production of a class that will compete with the best the American makers can offer. Moreover, there is no industry to which we can guarantee such absolute inducements. Here we have in abundance raw material of which the "movies" are made. We excel in sunshine over any place on the Western Coast, north of Southern California. Truly the British film interests should be persuaded, by some means, to look at the possibilities of this nature-created pictureland of Vancouver Island.

A Japanese proverb says, "Once seeing is better than a hundred times telling about." Hence, the great value of motion pictures as a publicity medium.

If our Chamber of Commerce, that is so active on many things, would devote some of the gigantic efforts it displays in other ways, such as sending delegates to far away conventions and entertaining celebrated visitors at elaborate luncheons; if, I say, the members of that influential body would just get down and concentrate on a couple of real industries that could establish here with profit, I believe they would have more to show at the end of the year than just memories of great speeches that brought little or no return.

Perhaps you have observed, anyway I have, that in order to get action or support for a proposition or an idea in Victoria, the suggestion or proposal must come from one of about four men in the city. I am afraid that as long as we keep our advancement bottled up in three or four minds we will remain within the narrow limits that three or four minds cover.

My idea of the best way to go ahead in our endeavor to "break into the movie" is to induce one of the leading men in the British film industry to visit Victoria. As in the case of a woolen mill venture we might assume part of the expense, and get him here to see for himself the variety and grandeur of our surroundings.

James VI and I

Sir.—In The Colonist of Thursday, November 4, page two, column 2, you speak of King James I, as also does a writer in today's Colonist, signed K. G., in reference to Guy Fawkes, which is incorrect. King James I died in 1625, long before Guy Fawkes was born. The Gunpowder Plot took place in the reign of King James VI and I.

I see by The Colonist of November 2, page twelve, column seven, that the River Clyde has been transported to England. I wonder if I will read in the next issue of your paper that the River Thames is now flowing where formerly the River Clyde flowed.

Gulf Islands' Service

Sir.—On and after the 1st inst. there is a change in our mail service so that we only receive mail twice a week, Monday and Thursday. Now, since "he who pays the piper can call the tune," we must credit the new and vaunted Liberal Government with this change, which will prove a deadly menace to the success of this district of South Salt Spring. The writer has special cause for complaint, since by his efforts Fulford Harbor has become recognized as a most Musterole is easy to apply and works right away. It may prevent a cold from turning into "flu" or pneumonia. It does all the good work of grandmother's mustard plaster. Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made of oil of mustard and other home made ingredients. It is recommended by many doctors and nurses. Try Musterole for sore throat, cold on the chest, rheumatism, lumbago, pleurisy, stiff neck, bronchitis, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pain and aches of the back and joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frost-bite—colds of all sorts.

desirable locality throughout the length and breadth of the Empire, as is evidenced by letters from all parts, even the most remote, and just as this is bringing results, this deadly blow to our progress is delivered.

I am voicing the sentiments of this district in thus protesting, and cannot too strongly express our feelings in a matter to which the Government is clearly a consenting party.

What even is the use of a daily paper to us under these conditions? Our traffic with Victoria is considerable, but the tradesmen of your city cannot fail to realize that if it takes a week to receive a reply, as may well occur, their business will suffer, since we shall be compelled to go without much on what we now obtain from there, and they, in turn, will receive less of our produce, much of which is perishable.

Road Extension in B.C.

Sir.—Your correspondent J. R. Armstrong, of Bayward, B.C., writing under the above matter, evidently brings home to the Public Works Department of Victoria some "facts" which cannot be refuted. Promises are like pie crust, made to be broken by some and are never carried out; just a "put-off" pro tem.

In the case of a road on the west side of Lake Shawnigan the difficulty appears to be lack of funds. I suggest that the Public Works Department of Victoria make a special request for sufficient funds to be provided by the forthcoming Legislature to carry out the necessary road improvements in this district

Startlingly Real!

The tone of the Orthophonic Victrola is the tone of the music itself-- Nothing else is like it.

Should you by chance hear the music of the Orthophonic Victrola—and not know it to be Orthophonic Victrola music—you would feel it to be the music itself. Many, many people have told us, have written us, that they have been thus impressed.

Small wonder! These extraordinary musical results are due to the new Orthophonic tone

You can have this wonderful instrument in your own home on convenient terms from any "His Master's Voice" dealer. Prices from $115 to $385. And remember to look for "His Master's Voice" trademark on every instrument. None genuine without it.

Character Building

Sir.—Having seen an article in The Times of November 2, advocating that music be taught in the High Schools, I am tempted to write the following. I should advocate that we have politicians, good manners and character building taught as a special subject. It should be in the curriculum. The world's famous educationists, who met in Montreal a short time ago, all agree that character building must be among the fundamentals of all correct teaching. They said a man without character was of little use in the world, however high his mental attainment may be.

When our pupils are through schooling they will want a position where they can apply what they have learnt, and to get this position they will want a polish that will not rub off, and character building will give this polish.

The Bible and Spirits

Sir.—On the front page of your issue dated Nov. 7, under the heading, "Child Medium Gives London Sages Pause," the director of the National Laboratory for Psychological Research tells of Eleonora Zugun, the child "poltergeist" medium, who has been under observation in London under conditions which absolutely precluded fraud.

May I suggest, sir, that if the Director of the National Laboratory for Physical Research could investigate the influence surrounding the birth and first years of Eleonora's life much light might be thrown on the present phenomena. It may be she is what one might call a "born medium" (a body through which a spirit can work). Some years ago there was one in Vancouver, a real medium, only five years old.

Did Eleonora's mother consult a medium as thousands of grief-stricken women did during the war, with the hope of getting even just a little information as to the whereabouts and conditions of their loved ones on the battlefield or who had died there, thinking that a medium could communicate with the "departed spirit" of her loved husband, brother or friend, when really the medium was getting messages from a fallen angel, a demon.

In Nov. 2 Colonist, your highly esteemed R.D.D. states that "under the Mosaic dispensation, communication with the spirits of the departed was forbidden to all true believers. The Christian religion was at one time quite as narrow in its views on the matter as the Jewish religion, but now there is neither a religious nor a civil ban against entering into direct communication with the spirits that live and move and have their being in the mysterious unseen realms of the greater world beyond.

If R.D.D. will pardon me, may I ask him to re-read the Genesis account of the fallen angels who were disobedient in the days of Noah and Deut. 18: 9-12, where God forbade the Jews to have any communication with them and also 1 Chron. 10: 13, 14, which tells of the death of King Saul because he disobeyed God by seeking their counsel.

There is no mention of "departed spirits" but of the fallen angel spirits beings who "came." They are a higher order of being than the human, and Satan is their chief. The evil spirits impersonated Samuel easily enough, and the medium gave the King messages in his name, but Samuel was dead, and could not give or receive messages. King Saul saw nothing, he merely received an answer from the witch who said she saw and heard Samuel.

King Saul's trouble and fear led him to seek the medium, contrary to the Divine Command. It is not for a moment supposed that God and Samuel, having refused to communicate with the King, would change and permit a witch, condemned by the Divine Law, to overrule the master.

Dominion—Bardelys the Magnificent, starring John Gilbert.
The Stage
Coliseum—"Peg o' My Heart."

COLISEUM "Peg o' My Heart" at the Coliseum is a very bright performance by Gertrude Burton. Peg steals out at night to go to a dance with "Sir Gerald," an English baronet, and they arrive home in the early hours in time to interrupt the elopement of "Ethel," the daughter of the house, who is running away with an adventurer named Brent.

PLAYHOUSE "The Reckless Lady," the current feature attraction at the Playhouse Theatre, introduces an actress who seems destined to become one of the outstanding stars of the screen. She is Belle Bennett, who plays the title role in this Robert Kane production. In "The Reckless Lady," Miss Bennett plays the part of a mother whose one mistake hangs over her in after years and who must make a constant series of sacrifices in her daughter's behalf.

CAPITOL "Variety," Paramount's latest effort to entertain a bored, blasé world, met with success at the Capitol Theatre Monday night. Among other things it serves to re-welcome an old favorite of local moviegoers, to introduce one who's destined to create a furor in film circles, and incidentally, to show us Canadians that all good films are not made within Hollywood's confines. The "old favorite" is Emil Jannings, star of "Passion," "The Last Laugh," and many others; the new one known as Lya de Putti. The title, "Variety," has nothing to do with the well-known "spice of life." Evidently, it is significant of the word "vaudeville," because the film is a story concerned with three members of a vaudeville team.

DOMINION John Gilbert's most active and colorful role, This may safely be said of the famous star's part in "Bardelys the Magnificent," the King Victor production for the Dominion Theatre, with Eleanor Boardman as leading woman.

PRINCE AND PRINCESS UNITED IN MARRIAGE

Following Civil Marriage in Stockholm, Rite of Church is Performed in Brussels

BRUSSELS, Nov. 10.—Prince Leopold of Belgium and Crown Princess Astrid of Sweden were united in marriage by a Roman Catholic ceremony in the Cathedral of St. Gudule this morning. Tonight they leave on their honeymoon for a destination which has been kept strictly secret.

The heir to the Belgian throne and the "daughter of the Vikings," whose love had found a way to overcome difficulties of political, religious and financial character, were the centre of the greatest demonstration in Brussels since the Armistice day eight years ago tomorrow.

Today's ceremony in the cathedral was made up of representatives of every royal family in Europe, as well as the diplomatic body in Brussels.

Ambassadors from all countries were seated in the nave of the cathedral. The Prince and Princess were received at the cathedral by high church dignitaries, headed by Archbishop Van Roey of Malines. He greeted the prospective young Queen of the Belgians in the name of the Catholic Church.

"You have come to kneel in this glorious temple to ask Him from whom all life depends for consecration and grace, and you have done so," the Archbishop said.

The entourage, which drove in open carriages to and from the cathedral, was made up of representatives of every royal family in Europe, as well as the diplomatic body in Brussels.

Maryhill Museum Was Visited by Queen

SECRET LIES SEALED FOR THIRTEEN YEARS

Sir Rider Haggard's Belief in Existence of Satan Is Revealed—Zulu Wants Book Profit

LONDON.—(By Mail).—That Sir Rider Haggard believed in the actual existence of Satan is revealed at the end of "The Days of My Life," just published.

Sir Rider died in May, 1925, and the confession of faith was found by his executors in his safe, where it had lain sealed since 1913.

"There was a time," he confesses, "when I did not credit the existence of an embodied evil."

"Today I have learned otherwise. For, in truth all these avenues of experience, search and thought, after many circuitous journeys and expeditions into nothingness, have at last led me back to the eternal verities that I was taught at my mother's knee."

Another secret revealed in the book is that Thomas Hardy's vow never to write another novel (after the publication of "Jude the Obscure") was taken in the Savile Club.

Presently Thomas Hardy entered and took up one of the leading weekly papers, in which was a long review of his last novel. He read it and then came to me—there were no others in the room—and pointed out a certain passage. "There's a nice thing

"What does Indiana do with the books he has written?"

"He sells them, Umslopogass."

"Then say to Indiana, when you meet him across the black water, that as he makes money by writing about me it is right and just that he should send me half the money."

Being sent by Mr. Balfour's Government to report on the Salvation Army colonies in Canada, Sir Rider brought home an important report in 1925, and he goes on to tell of its reception.

"Some weeks after my return I had a brief interview with Alfred Lyttelton in the House of Commons. He expressed himself delighted with the report. When I asked him whether he was satisfied with my work, he replied:

"Satisfied, I think it splendid," adding, "I wish the Prime Minister would take it up. But Arthur won't read it; you know Arthur won't read anything."

And that was the end of the report. From Mr. Lloyd George, Sir Rider had a very different reception. When the latter set up the Royal Commission on coast erosion, Sir Rider wrote to him explaining a method of keeping back the sea by planting marram grass, which had proved successful on Sir Rider's estate in Norfolk.

"Mr. Lloyd George asked me to come and see him, which I did, with the result that I found myself a member of the commission."

Man Commits Suicide Before Police Arrive

MONTREAL, Nov. 10.—When police forced their way into the home of Alvaro Lauson, forty-one, yesterday, to arrest him on a charge of assaulting his wife, they found him dead from gas asphyxiation. The men had closed the doors and windows and turned on the gas stove.

"MILE STEP" REVIVAL FACES DANCE MASTERS

Kansas City Devotes of Terpsichorean Threaten to Revive Marathon Event

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 10.—While Arthur Murray and Ann Pennington are endeavoring to adapt the "Black Bottom" for ballroom use, Kansas City dancing masters are sorely tried over a threatened return of the "one-mile-one-step."

Nearly a year ago the "mile step" made its appearance in the public dance halls and all last winter its exponents whirled and sailed around the polished loops while the onlookers shouted and chortled in sympathetic glee.

Really a Marathon

The "dance" was in reality a marathon affair. A track was formed on the floor by arranging a circle of chairs in the centre. Twenty couples were allowed to enter, each race, "running" and "skipping" being barred. The young women were given seven tickets and a small white cap, all labelled with a number. When the starter gave the word the twenty shoved off, shouting and jostling in an effort to get the inside track.

Each couple was required to reverse the direction of its "one-stepping" every lap, to prevent dizziness. At the turn the young woman handed one of the tickets to the starter and the first one handing in all seven was declared the winner.

Kansas City dancing masters said the "mile step" was not a dance and refused to have much to do with it. The fox trot and a modified Charleston are the popular dances at the hotel and grill rooms. Now and then a couple will essay the "Valencia" and the New French Tango, but such innovations are transient. Orchestra leaders believe the Middle West will continue without the "Black Bottom."

Along the Missouri River front, however, persons who should know declare that the "Black Bottom" is nothing but a slightly refined adaptation of the "Deep Muddy," a dance which was introduced into certain disreputable saloons about 1905.

CLERK MAKES RECORD DASH UP MONUMENT

Young Fish Salesman Runs From Shop to Top of Monument and Back in Quick Time

LONDON.—(By Mail).—Down Billingsgate way they are discussing the fact achieved by a young fish salesman, Len Clarke, who, for a wager, ran sixty yards from his place of business in Lower Thames Street, to the top of the monument and back again in 3 minutes 50 seconds.

This is regarded as rather an exceptional feat of endurance for a man not specially trained to attempt it.

Many city men, however, have memories of the days when "to the top of the Monument and back to the office" used to be a popular test of prowess amongst the young "bloodes" who fancied their athletic abilities.

It used frequently to form the subject of wagers, although of late years it seems to have gone rather out of fashion.

"Some time ago," Clarke said recently, "I had a shot at it, and got to the top and back to the shop in four and a quarter minutes."

"I was talking about this, and I was told that it was impossible."

"One man bet me ten shillings and another five shillings that I would not do it in the time that I had said, so I took them on—and won the wager."

Mr. George Rayer, of Messrs. L. C. Rayer, Ltd., Clarke's employers, was the principal timekeeper, and three other watches also "clocked" the runner and confirmed the time.

"There is no getting away from the accuracy of the time," Mr. Rayer said, "and in order that there might be no argument afterwards, we stationed two men on the top gallery of the Monument and Clarke was 'clocked' by four watches."

To reach the Monument the runner had to cross Lower Thames Street, run up the steps of Pudding Lane, and then up Monument Street.

The stairway running up the inside of the column has 311 steps, is rather narrow, and winds steeply.

One of the veteran attendants on duty at the Monument told me that the record for running from the foot of the stairway to the top and down to the bottom again in two and a half minutes.

"This was done many years ago," he said, "by a man from the Stock Exchange, who, however, was in special training."

"Considering that Clarke was not specially trained, and that he had to dodge through the traffic and people on the pavements in running to and from the Monument, his time is a very good indeed."

Another attendant who saw the feat said that Clarke might have improved his time if he had not been so anxious.

"In racing up the stairs," he said, "he tried to take too many at a time, and kept slipping and stumbling. Climbing these stairs wants practice."

Her Little Boy Caught Cold While Out Playing

Mrs. F. Cade, Elmwood, Mass., writes:—"My little boy caught cold while out playing in the snow. He coughed incessantly all that night and the next day, and nothing I gave him seemed to relieve him. When my husband came home he brought a bottle of with him. After the second dose my boy was greatly relieved and after the third dose he went to sleep and slept the whole night through without any coughing. I am never without it in the house, and whenever any of the children get the slightest cold it's the first thing I give them."

Price 35c, a bottle, large size 60c; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.
